Algae concerns spark a community forum...

SEAING GREEN

By Tara Nash

Concerns around the microalgae bloom impacting Fleurieu Peninsula's south coast beaches has sparked a forum tonight, April 24, with more than 100 community members expected to attend.

This follows many people avoiding swimming in the discoloured water or walking on beaches if experiencing symptoms over the Easter break after the State Government issued a warning.

Commercial harvesting of pipis closed since last week between the Murray Mouth to 10km south, and ongoing testing in other areas continue.

An ongoing marine heatwave is believed to be the cause behind the algae, with water temperatures 2.5C warmer than usual, as well as relatively calm marine conditions with little wind and small swells.

Locals are waiting on strong westerly winds to stir up and dilute the bloom, which is historically around the end of April.

Estuarine Ecologist Faith Coleman – who will be one of tonight's speakers – explained the cause as “more complicated than just climate change”, with a combination of factors such as dredging of natural habitat.

She also added that the season break is unpredictable due to climate change.

“Generally, winds will arrive around Anzac Day, but it hasn't happened for a long time,” she said.

“It's getting later and later and more inconsistent each year... the break is less predictable.”

Globally, similar outbreaks have generally lasted between a week to two months depending on wind, rain and ocean temperature fluctuations.

The local issue began last month when surfers reported sore eyes, coughing and blurry vision when visiting Waitpinga and Parsons beaches.

Then earlier this month, foam and discoloured water were reported at Goolwa Beach, Chiton Rocks and Port Elliot, as well as dead pipis washed up on shore.

Goolwa surfer Anna Markey has refrained from surfing for the past month.

“It started to affect people who didn't even go into the water,” she said.

“As soon as I opened the door to the car at Middleton Point, I started coughing – it was very noticeable.

“We all love this coast along here – it's our home.”

A fleet of head-turning vintage American cars recently toured Strathalbyn and Goolwa as part of their four-day rally.

The 23rd Singer Nationals hosted about 80 car-lovers and their vehicles from across the country in Victor Harbor as well as a tour around Fleurieu Peninsula.

This included a ride on the Cockle Train from Goolwa, and a tour of Gilbert's Motor Museum, Collectable Classic Cars and Glenbarr Homestead.

The national rally is held every two years and rotates between the states.

Windy weather strikes Milang Easter Fair

By Deirdre Graham

Strong winds might have meant stallholders finished up early at Saturday's Milang Easter Fair, but crowd numbers were still reportedly healthy over the weekend.

About 58 stalls were booked in near the town's railway museum and 13 up at the Butter Factory - with a few late withdrawals.

The station's carriage cafeteria sold out of food, while 380 people took the opportunity to go on a free train ride.

"Before the winds came, it was very good," Milang Historic Railway Museum Secretary, Peter Lucas, said.

"It was a pity about the wind because the wind made a mess of a lot of stalls, and it meant that by 12.30, the fair had to close because it was just too windy.

"It is the first time (the fair) has been windy like that, that I can remember."

Easter Bunny had an eggs-ellent time handing out Easter eggs to the young and young at heart.

Meanwhile, up at the Butter Factory, volunteers reported a "busy" day.

"People seemed to be enjoying the weekend," Milang and District Community Association President (MADCA), Karyn Bradford, said.

"The weather wasn't all that kind to us, but people happily visited and purchased Margurete Loveridge-Aistrope and Mick Turner, otherwise known as Gypsy and Slim, providing some music at Saturday's fair in Milang.

"We had lots of craft stalls here... and it was nice for people to have the opportunity to share their work locally.

"I think the stallholders and the public were a bit disappointed with the weather... and at the Butter Factory, everyone was under cover, so that made things a lot easier for those people who were here - it was much more challenging down at the railway station."

Easter celebrations at the Butter Factory continued on Sunday with a performance by Mark Probin that attracted about 50 people.

Milang heritage protected under code amendment

Milang's heritage buildings are now better protected after the State Government approved Alexandrina Council's Heritage Code Amendment for the former thriving riverport town.

Council initiated the code amendment after comprehensive research revealed many of the residential and civic buildings constructed in Milang between the 1850s and 1900 - when the River Murray was a major trade route - remained intact.

Milang has a small number of State Heritage-listed buildings, but no Local Heritage buildings or places have ever been listed.

After going to public consultation last year, the Milang Local Heritage Code Amendment was recently endorsed by the Minister for Planning Nick Champion and is now in place.

Mr Champion said Milang had a rich history and that could still be seen today, with a number of buildings a reminder of the original township.

"Any future development should complement and celebrate these historic areas and buildings," he said.

"This code amendment will ensure Milang's distinctive character can continue to be enjoyed into the future, with the Historic Area Overlay to protect the substantial heritage in the lakeside town."

The code amendment now lists several buildings, places and items, and establishes a Historic Area Overlay over the town.

"Protecting and promoting Alexandrina's history is a priority for our council, and Milang is one of our towns that still retains much of its early architecture, and this heritage contributes invaluable to the character of the town," Alexandrina Mayor, Keith Parkes, said.

"The early character of Milang is evident in its original subdivision pattern and surrounding parklands, and the historic buildings which remain from the 1850s to the early 1900s when Milang was a town for the district and a thriving port for the growing River Murray trade.

"This main period of development in Milang has left a rich legacy of buildings, including prominent public buildings and churches and many private residences of varying degrees of scale and detail, which create the town's heritage character."

Algae concerns spark a community forum

“So, to see and smell this sick marine life and then develop coughs from the algae bloom becoming windborne has become very scary for people.”

She is one of the organisers behind tonight’s community forum at Middleton, which will include guest speakers and a panel, so guests can hear from scientists, First Nations peoples, and surfers, and learn about marine health.

This event is hosted by The Wild South and Rising Tide.

“When people are confused or frightened or don’t have information, then it’s bad for the community,” Ms Markey said.

“We’re doing this because we can see the community want to join the dots.

“What we would like people to take away is how important it is to get informed.”

The State Government announced that an ongoing microalgae bloom named karenia mikimotoi was affecting beaches on the Fleurieu Peninsula, Yorke Peninsula and Kangaroo Island.

The algae is considered non-toxic, as in, harmful to humans or one that could cause long-term effects, however exposure can cause skin irritation, eye irritation and respiratory symptoms such as coughing and shortness of breath.

These symptoms resolve within several hours after leaving the beach and adjacent area.

marine species mortalities at varying concentrations and is known to impact the gills of fish.

The last time a large event of this type of algae was recorded in SA was in 2014 in Coffin Bay.

Waitpinga Beach and Parsons Beach, where significant levels of the bloom were first detected, have now reopened after algae levels reduced.

Kids connect with culture

By Tara Nash

Strathalbyn Kindergarten students have been learning about First Nations culture through artwork and stories thanks to a $5000 grant from Alexandrina Council.

The Strathalbyn Kindergarten Nga:tji Project is led by Ramindjeri-Ngarrindjeri and Narungga cultural leader and artist Cedric Varcoe in teaching students about culture through artwork, dancing and stories.

Three posts in the playground now have an eye-catching painting representing Strathalbyn and nga:tji, which Mr Varcoe described as a totem, a “guardian angel”, and an animal that “we have responsibility to care for, look after, and preserve”.

It also is a nod to the animal names given to each kindergarten group.

“As they grow up, they learn that they’ve got responsibilities for our wildlife – to co-exist, preserve and support,” Mr Varcoe said.

“They have an opportunity to learn the culture and use language, while on Ngarrindjeri country.

“We’re going through the stories, and how we pay respect through dancing, song and story.”

The project began with Mr Varcoe leading students for a walk around the community, taking note of the environment.

“We spoke about ‘what do we see on country?’ Even though we live in a town, there are still a lot of aspects of culture and history in sight,” Mr Varcoe said.

“And they learn more about how it’s been utilised for thousands of years.”

Students have contributed to the artwork and speak to Mr Varcoe while he paints.

“There are lots of different questions they were asking – (it’s good) how curious they are,” he said.

“It’s really good having them to be able to connect with Ngarrindjeri culture – it’s important to keep it alive.”

Being an integral part of the community, Mr Varcoe has become passionate about engaging others with the “oldest living culture in the world”.

“When I get an opportunity, I paint and create with non-Indigenous community,” he said.

“We can respect it and appreciate it by being involved with it.

“I’ve enjoyed it over the years, I’ve loved it – it’s become my passion.”

Artists turn out for Macclesfield festival

By Deirdre Graham

Macclesfield’s Creative Pursuits Art Festival brought artists together for one big weekend recently.

Popular events across the weekend included two sessions of Acapella-style Gospel singing on Saturday with Adelaide choral master Quentin Eysers which attracted about 30 people to both, and a workshop with the Southern Elders Weavers Group, along with a series of workshops such as water colour painting, pen and ink wash, and other forms of art.

While numbers were down on last year – possibly due to both cost-of-living pressures and other big events such as Gather Round also scheduled for the same weekend – Macclesfield Community Art Group Co-ordinator June Conroy said organisers were happy.

“On (the) Sunday, Simone Tippet from Union Street Print came up and she was really popular,” she said.

“She did a printing workshop in the morning and in the afternoon, and everybody was very positive about that experience.”

More than 30 artists across a range of genres, including watercolour, acrylic, pastels, drawing, 3D sculptures such as ceramics, clay work, Hanji, and visual loops and woodwork, entered the festival’s awards.

The Best in Show award was given to Macclesfield artist Lucy Jagt for her piece The Miners, while Strathalbyn artist Kathleen Cain won the People’s Choice Award for her work Beach Community.

The children’s five to 12 years’ award was taken out by Asher Ferriera with a mixed media piece called Thunder, while Bella Vaninetti won the 12 to 18 years category with Cookie.

A total of six honourable mentions were also given.

They included:

- Stan Davis for limestone sculpting.
- Monika Morgenstern – a contemporary visual artist.
- Silvio Apponyi for bronze work sculptures.
- Andy Rasheed for musical instruments.
- Natasha Mallen – ceramic artist.
- Kathleen Cain – pastel work.

Judges were Director of the Hahndorf Academy Rachel McElwee and Mount Barker District Council Arts Officer Sally Hardy.

A total of 170 people attended the paid workshops over the weekend, with $4900 worth of artwork sold and $4200 paid to the workshop artists.

This meant more than $9000 was returned to artists, along with $1900 in prize money.

Ms Conroy said the feedback from artists was immensely positive, commenting on how supported they felt to be able to share their work.

A number of artists exhibited for the first time, with newcomer Stan Davis, who has only been sculpting for a couple of years, selling three of his four pieces.

“It was so positive in so many different dimensions, so when you stand back and ask if it was successful, it absolutely was,” Ms Conroy said.

“Did we have as many people as we would have liked? No, but there were so many other wonderful things that happened, so while we might not have had the foot traffic through or the people coming to workshops... the people that did come and participate had very positive feedback.”

Also on the weekend, the Lions Skin Check van was fully booked.

Port Elliot businesses destroyed by fire

A commercial premises at Port Elliot was destroyed by a fire that erupted in the early hours of last Thursday morning.

Just after midnight on April 17, seven appliances carrying approximately 35 firefighters responded to a Triple Zero call for a structure fire at a Hill Street premises.

Upon arrival, firefighters found a shed well-involved, and set about containing the fire to the premises involved.

Utilising breathing apparatus, firefighters worked hard to contain the fire and prevent it from spreading into other nearby businesses.

However, unfortunately, firefighters were unable to prevent the building from being destroyed by the fire and damage exceeding $1 million was caused to the property hire and gym business.

Fire investigators and Victor Harbor CIB attended the scene later that morning.

The cause of the fire is unknown but is being treated as suspicious.

Detectives reviewed nearby CCTV and identified a light coloured vehicle seen near the premises around the time of the incident.

Anyone who may have seen suspicious activity in the area is asked to call Crime Stoppers on 1800 333 000 or online at (www.crimestopperssa.com.au).

A Port Elliot premises was destroyed after a fire broke out last Thursday.

A fire at a Murray Bridge home earlier this month uncovered an insecure bolt action shotgun along with three gel blasters, another firearm, and large quantities of ammunition and firearm parts.

‘Coffee with a Cop’ comes to Strathalbyn

South Australia Police will be hosting its ‘Coffee with a Cop’ event in Strathalbyn on Monday.

Held at the Soldiers Memorial Gardens from 11am to 1pm, the event provides an opportunity for the community to meet and learn about its local police force and to ask any questions.

Regional roads make state’s most risky list

A local road and an intersection have been voted by the community as some of the riskiest in South Australia.

Risky Roads is the biggest state-wide survey aimed at identifying unsafe roads or intersections, with the results used by RAA to advocate for infrastructure improvements.

The latest survey received more than 1800 nominations and included a local road and an intersection in the list of top regional risky roads.

Goolwa Road placed seventh in the top 10 regional roads, while the Paris Creek Road/ Bull Creek Road intersection placed fifth in its category.

RAA Senior Traffic Engineer Matt Vertudaches said the survey highlighted the pressure on the road network.

“At RAA we want to advocate for safer roads and safer communities, and our Risky Roads survey is a key study that helps us identify areas of concern,” he said.

“It’s no secret South Australia has a $2 billion road maintenance backlog, and that came through loud and clear from respondents.

“Sections of Victor Harbor Road, Main North Road and Black Top Road were just a few examples where drivers feel the poor surface is posing a risk to safety.

“We continue to call for more investment to address our road maintenance backlog to improve safety before the problem gets even worse.”

Fire ban extended for two weeks for Mt Lofty Ranges

The Mount Lofty Ranges fire ban has been extended by two weeks to May 14 – the first extension for the district in five years.

It comes as the state’s aerial firefighting fleet has completed nearly double the number of drops this fire danger season compared to last season, fuelled by ongoing hot and dry conditions across South Australia.

Around 3000 drops by fixed wing and rotary aircraft have been recorded this season compared to nearly 1600 drops in the 2023/24 season, and hours flown are well-up to 1920 hours in contrast to 1399 hours in the previous period.

Aerial resources played a critical role in supporting crews on the ground to suppress fires and help protect communities, with more than 1300 individual aircraft dispatches attending 200-plus incidents this season.

“After the driest summer we’ve seen in years, conditions remain a concern for frontline personnel, particularly in the Mount Lofty Ranges,” Emergency Services Minister, Emily Bourke, said.

“CFS volunteers on the ground have been supported by crews in the sky, with our aerial fleet recording more drops and hours flown than last season.”

People are reminded that a gas or electric barbecue is permitted during the fire danger season so long as it’s four metres from flammable vegetation, a responsible person is controlling the fire, and an appropriate extinguisher is at hand.

It is also permitted on a total fire ban day providing the cooking appliance is within 15 metres of a domestic or commercial premises, or on a coastal foreshore.

“Fuel loads vary across the Mount Lofty Ranges, with high forest and scrub fuels in parts and somewhat low fuels in others, and the exceptionally dry conditions and lack of forecast rain in the near future poses a risk of fire,” CFS Acting Deputy Chief Officer, Brenton Hastie, said.

“Volunteers have worked incredibly hard to keep the South Australian community safe throughout this fire danger season and will continue to respond to incidents across the state, but the community need to be aware that the risk of fire won’t abate until there is significant rainfall.”

Several districts including the Mid-North, Murraylands, Riverland, Lower South East, Upper South East, Yorke Peninsula, Adelaide Metropolitan and Kangaroo Island will end as scheduled on April 30, with all other districts already out of season.

Despite the season end in sight for most districts, South Australian communities are reminded not to become complacent, as dry conditions and minimal rainfall continues to pose a risk of bushfire in the landscape throughout autumn.

Current weather predictions indicate no meaningful rain for April, May and parts of June.

Firearms found at Murray Bridge

A Murray Bridge man faces firearms charges after a backyard fire led to the discovery of insecure firearms at his address earlier this month.

At about 3pm on Tuesday, April 8, police responded to reports of an uncontrolled fire in the rear yard of a Murray Bridge address.

While at the property, officers allegedly discovered an insecure bolt action shotgun.

A further search revealed three gel blasters and another firearm, as well as a large quantity of various ammunition and firearm parts.

Following investigations, a 54-year-old Murray Bridge man was subsequently arrested and charged with multiple firearms offences, including possessing a firearm without a licence, possessing an unregistered firearm, possessing an insecure firearm and possessing ammunition without a licence.

He was bailed to appear in Murray Bridge Magistrates Court on July 7.

Anyone with information on illegal firearms in the community can report it to Crime Stoppers on 1800 333 000 or online at (www.crimestopperssa.com.au).

The stolen black TREK road bike.

Bike stolen from Murray Bridge

Police are investigating theft of a road bike stolen from Murray Bridge in the early hours of last Thursday morning.

At 3.23am on April 10, a black TREK road bike was stolen from the rear of a Toyota station wagon parked in a carpark on Bridge Street.

Anyone with information on the whereabouts of the bike or the theft is asked to contact Crime Stoppers on 1800 333 000 or online at (<https://crimestopperssa.com.au>).

Volunteers aboard for festival

By Tara Nash

The original Storm Boy will celebrate its milestone 50th anniversary next year, and the beloved boat used in the film will be on display during this weekend's SA Wooden Boat Festival at Goolwa.

The 1976 film won over the hearts of locals as it showcases the beautiful South Australian landscape, particularly the Goolwa and Coorong region.

Hideaway – which was owned by Storm Boy's father Hideaway Tom – was found wrecked on the Murray River before being lovingly restored by Armfield Slip volunteers over about four years.

It will join Armfield Slip's fleet of boats, including Meralte used in the 2019 Storm Boy production, in the festival this weekend.

Armfield Slip offers a social outlet for members while promoting traditional wooden boat-building skills.

An announcement will soon be made of the winner of a hand-built boat by Armfield Slip, which is the first prize in the not-for-profit organisation's raffle, its major fundraiser and promoted during the SA Wooden Boat Festival.

A team took about 18 months to build the 12-foot Guillemot dinghy, which will be drawn by Mayor Keith Parkes on Monday.

Thousands of people are expected to pour into Goolwa this weekend to view more than 100 wooden boats on display for the biennial event, which will include competitions, displays, live music and a fireworks display on Saturday night.

Goolwa's Armfield Slip shed on Liverpool Road will also be open and volunteers will conduct demonstrations such as steam bending, and cooking a barbecue.

Goolwa was one of Australia's most important river ports from the 1850s to the 1880s and its original wharf was built in 1852.

The SA Wooden Boat Festival will also be the official opening of the upgrade of the historic Goolwa Wharf Precinct.

Members of the Friends of Cox Scrub have marked the organisation's 20th anniversary with a Picnic in the Park.

The event was also a chance to award four of the 'friends' with awards from Minister of Climate, Environment and Water Susan Close marking 10 to 20 years of outstanding conservation work in the Cox Scrub Conservation Park.

Members, together with three Parks and Wildlife Rangers, gathered around 'Barries Table' for the picnic.

We'll fight for South Australia

Vote 1 Liberal in the Senate

The Liberals will help with the cost of living

Immediate relief. The Liberals will halve the petrol tax, saving you 25 cents every litre. We'll also scrap Labor's ute and family car tax and deliver a cost of living tax offset of up to $1,200.

Cheaper energy. We will reserve more gas for Australians as part of a balanced energy mix, including renewables and zero-emissions nuclear energy.

Affordable homes. We will fund the infrastructure required for housing, place a two-year ban on foreign investors, and support first home buyers by allowing mortgage payments to be deducted from their income tax.

Safer communities. We will boost defence and border security and enhance community safety.

Quality healthcare. We will fund more GPs, increase bulk billing and double the number of Medicare subsidised mental health sessions from 10 to 20.

Screening success

Thank you for the part your paper and the article by reporter Tara played in making the Battunga Lions skin cancer screening a success. The two days were fully booked, and the screeners saw 128 people and recommended 11 of them to seek further assessment by their GP for suspected skin cancers. The screenings also enabled screeners to reinforce the importance of sun protection in the prevention of skin cancers. Thank you, Southern Argus.

Reflecting 110 years on

As we approach the 110th anniversary of the Gallipoli landings, it is imperative we pause and reflect on the significance of Anzac Day in 2025. This solemn occasion represents more than just a moment in history, it is a day when we remember the immense sacrifices made by the men and women of our armed forces, both past and present. The Anzac spirit – defined by courage, mateship, and sacrifice – has been the bedrock of Australia’s military heritage and national identity. It is essential that we, as a nation, continue to honour that spirit not only by attending dawn services and marches, but also through the ongoing support for the men and women who have served, and continue to serve, in our defence forces. As our veterans grow older it is crucial we preserve the stories and legacies of their service for future generations. Commemorating Anzac Day is not only about remembering the past, but also about reaffirming our commitment to the wellbeing of our veterans and their families. As the Shadow Minister for Veterans Affairs, I am dedicated to ensuring that all our veterans receive the recognition and support they deserve. We must ensure that Anzac Day remains a day of reflection, respect, and dedication to those who have served our country with distinction. In 2025, let us come together with pride and respect as we commemorate the Anzac spirit and pledge to uphold the values that have made Australia the strong, resilient nation it is today.

Program potential

While many irrigators have been removing patches of wine grapes and converting to other crops, there are still many grape growers feeling the impact of ongoing low prices. With consumption of commercial wine falling globally and the large volume of wine retained in storage, there is little cause for optimism in the immediate future. But there may be some assistance via a program between the State and Federal Governments for funding to assist transition from unprofitable crops to better options. The River Murray Communities Water Transition Program uses Federal Government funding through state agencies who will administer the program. An agreement between the State and Federal Governments, it aims to recover water to the environment, with incentives for irrigators who can demonstrate efficiency gains from this change. Improving efficiency is a challenge for South Australian irrigators, who are already the most efficient in the nation. With the use of water for irrigation effectively capped in 1968, the only way for irrigators in this state to get bigger was to be as efficient as possible. Unlike upstream irrigators many methods of improving efficiency, such as fully enclosed delivery systems, drip irrigation and soil moisture monitoring is already in common use. The burden of this previous investment, plus the costs of energy, employment, and compliance, have come when many commodities are receiving historically low returns. Few irrigators have enough disposable income or borrowing power to fund a transition on their own. This program has the potential to make a difference on the condition that it is well-managed. Firstly, the minister should ensure South Australia receives a fair share of federal funding for the water recovered and the efficiencies gained. Secondly, the government must ensure it fulfills its commitments as soon as possible. While the Federal Government is currently in caretaker mode, it is imperative the business case is approved, and that whatever the makeup of the incoming Federal Government, our minister hits the ground running to access these funds. Thirdly, it is important the State Government offers a co-contribution to address any shortfall in achieving the necessary reform. Leveraging federal funding will allow the required transition to be faster and more effective. Currently, it appears there is little urgency in the roll-out of this program from the State Government and, in fact, one is hard pressed to find out how it is tracking. The State Government and the minister must be transparent, prompt and open with communications about the program to enable people to make important decisions as soon as possible.

Shadow Minister for Water Resources and the River Murray

Batmobiles and tourism

If you were a kid in the 1960s or possibly even an adult, one of the television series you were probably hooked on was Batman. Front and centre of the movie series was the car – equipped with its vast array of bat-gadgets, which were essential given Batman held no super powers and relied on them to fight crime. Come April 2025 at Gilbert’s Motor Museum and enter Batmobile fanatic Jay Munzer. Mr Munzer has been a Batmobile fanatic since the original television show began. Not long after starting his apprenticeship as a panel beater, the skills he was learning made Mr Munzer believe he too could build a Batmobile. The original car featured in the television series was built in three weeks by custom car builder George Barris. In addition to an ‘atomic turbine engine’ it had add-ons that included lasers, rockets, and an on-board computer. Well, after paying off a house mortgage Mr Munzer built his replica 98 per cent true to Batmobile #1. Holy Toledo. Mr Munzer spent about 2000 hours or eight years ‘solid’ working on his stand-out vehicle, and still has further plans for his creation. Also a fan of ‘bat products’ he has added more replica items such as an insecticide bat bomb, bat glue, ‘radioactive’ bat spray, shark repellent, and anti-bat blast powder. Not surprisingly, the Batmobile has been a hit wherever Mr Munzer has been able to put it on show. Locals and visitors to Strathalbyn are now in for a treat, with Mr Munzer’s Batmobile on display at the Gilbert’s Motor Museum in Strathalbyn for the next six months.

The museum volunteers are expecting the addition to bring in some extra visitors during its stay, which will in turn, mean more money spent in the town for local eateries, shops and attractions.

Town Hall re-opening date pushed back

By Giorgina McKay

A “soft opening” is anticipated for the Strathalbyn Town Hall sometime in July.

Works have been ongoing over several months to upgrade the town hall, but the project has experienced many delays.

It was previously anticipated to re-open in May, however, according to a report from Monday night’s Alexandrina Council meeting, redevelopment works are yet to be completed, and administration have other compliance and contractual arrangements to finalise prior to the building being ready for public utilisation.

“This is a normal process to undertake with re-opening a building, as well as noting that council have not directly managed this building for approximately 20 years,” the report read.

“Administration is currently focused on preparing the building to open for public use.

“We are planning to have opportunities for the community to come in and view the hall, and these will be communicated through various communications channels and methods once finalised and confirmed.”

It is council’s aim to have the Strathalbyn Town Band operating from the hall as soon as all compliance and contractual arrangements are in place, and further information on community use/hire of the hall will occur from July.

This means the council meeting planned to be held in May to celebrate and showcase the renovated town hall will have to be pushed back.

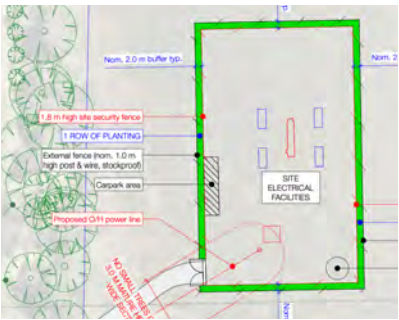

If the meeting fails to occur until next financial year an allocation in the 2025/26 budget will need to be made for technology hire.

“The technology that was hired for the May 2024 meeting remains a valid and potentially superior option to the technology on-site given that it was configured specifically for a council meeting,” the report read.

“Until administration has finalised all arrangements concerning the operations of the hall, it is not possible to determine at this time when the hall will be ready to host a council meeting.”

Alexandrina Council is hoping for a ‘soft opening’ for the Strathalbyn Town Hall in July.

Renewable energy facility proposed for Meadows site

By Giorgina McKay

A proposed renewable energy facility based in Meadows aims to make the local energy system more efficient and resilient by storing excess energy during low demand periods.

A development application was submitted by ACenergy for a renewable energy facility comprising of a battery energy storage system for the storage of up to five megawatts with an associated carpark, electrical pole to connect the BESS facility to the existing power network, landscaping, fencing, detention basin, infrastructure and above ground 72,000 litre water tank based on 60 Greenhills Road.

Ample informal onsite parking will be made available during construction, and post-construction two onsite vehicle parking spaces will be provided to accommodate maintenance vehicles.

Construction is anticipated to last four weeks, with working hours limited to 7am to 6pm Monday to Friday, and 8am to 1pm on Saturdays.

Currently the private property has a detached dwelling and scattered mature trees on the land, and has been used for low intensity farming, specifically grazing in the past.

The development is anticipated to enhance the reliability and sustainability of the local energy infrastructure, and support the continued farming use of the land rather than fragmenting.

ACenergy undertook its own community engagement for submitting the application to receive early feedback from locals but received no response.

However, broader residents can have their say through the Plan SA portal before 11.59pm on Thursday, May 8 by visiting (https://plan.sa.gov.au/have\_your\_say/notified\_developments/current\_notified\_developments/submission?aid=10657).

A combined meeting of land and householders in Callington, Hartley, Woodchester and Red Creek areas is due for May 1, after they were to receive water from the Murray Bridge/ Hahndorf pipeline recently but seeing that plan refused by the Minister of Works. Acting Chairman of the Progress Association Don Brown said during a recent Progress Assoc. meeting held on 14/4/75, all persons present aired their views in angry reaction to the latest refusal of a pipeline service to these four areas. # Candidates contest for constituents’ vote

Several candidates will be contesting for the seat of Mayo in the upcoming Federal Election.

Scheduled for May 3, the election will not only determine who is Prime Minister, but who represents constituents locally.

Overseas voting centres are available during the early voting period, which is the two weeks leading up to polling day.

If you’re overseas and unable to vote in-person or by postal vote, you should complete and submit an overseas notification form.

It is not compulsory to vote if you are outside Australia, however, you must inform the Australian Electoral Commission.

If you have chosen a postal vote, your postal vote certificate and ballot papers must be completed on or before election day.

Early voting stations will be set up to vote before election day.

The following early voting centres will be open locally:

- 2 Sandergrove Road, Strathalbyn
- 21-23 McLaren Street, Mount Barker

- 5 George Main Road, Victor Harbor
- Shop T21-22, 21-53 South Terrace, Murray Bridge

On election day, the following sites will be open to cast your vote:

- Eastern Fleurieu R-12 School
- Milang Institute
- Langhorne Creek Soldiers Memorial Hall
- Goolwa Secondary College
- Goolwa Uniting Church
- Ashbourne War Memorial Hall
- 1372 Callington Road, Woodchester

Rebekha Sharkie

Party affiliation: Central Alliance

Current Member for Mayo Rebekha Sharkie will once again contest in the Federal Election, with a promise to ‘Make Mayo Matter’.

The electorate has been home to Ms Sharkie, who lives in the Hills with her husband and dog Lulu, for more than 30 years and is where she first ran for the seat of Mayo eight years ago because she believed community engagement is essential to national decision-making.

During her time in the role, she has helped secure more than $500 million in funding for projects in the region, including health and recreational facilities, major transport infrastructure, and environmental protection.

If elected to continue, Ms Sharkie will continue to advocate for projects that improve the lives of people in Mayo, including a Mount Barker passenger rail, rail extension south from Seaford Meadows, a palliative care clinic in Victor Harbor, an urgent care clinic in Mount Barker, a National Dairy Centre of Excellence, an endometriosis and pelvic clinic in the Hills, federal drought relief funding, improved regional telecommunications, full funding of the Coorong Lower Lakes Murray Mouth Research Centre, and improved sport and recreational facilities such as Lot 10, Onkaparinga Valley Football Club, Nairne Bremer Football Club and McLaren Flat Soccer Club.

“I listen and care about the community I live in,” she said.

“As a representative of the people of Mayo, I am passionate about the issues that matter to them.

“People in Mayo tell me they want genuine cost-of-living measures, better access to health services, and improved social and transit infrastructure.

“As an independent voice for Mayo, I believe I can secure the best outcomes for our community – I am not bound by party lines and will continue to vote for each piece of legislation on its merits, as I have always done.”

Party affiliation: Labor Party

An intensive care nurse and educator is ready to advocate for the community in a new role if elected for the seat of Mayo in the upcoming Federal Election.

Marisa Bell was a strong Labor candidate at the last Federal Election and has spent the past two years fighting for her community as a City of Onkaparinga councillor.

She has worked in the health system for more than 40 years – currently as an intensive care nurse – and is a proud member of the Australian Nursing and Midwifery Federation.

Inspired by the courage of her Italian ancestors who came to Australia seeking a better life, she is passionate about improving the lives of others and advocating for a “fair society where everyone has the opportunity to fulfil their potential”.

Among the local issues that are a priority for Ms Bell are affordable and accessible health services regardless of the township size, aged care, providing opportunities for young people to learn closer to home, prioritising infrastructure projects that connect and better protect regional communities, including residents travelling from fast growing areas, and increased public transport options.

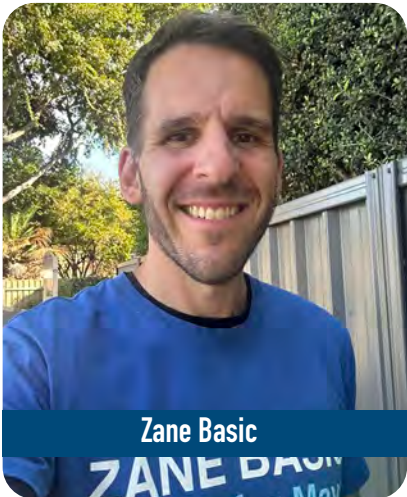

She promised to work collaboratively across all levels of government to achieve outcomes for the beautifully diverse electorate.

“I have a proven track record of getting things done in my community of Kangarilla and as a councillor for the City of Onkaparinga, and will advocate for my constituents in the same manner I do my patients – with compassion, integrity and accountability,” Ms Bell said.

“As a daughter of hardworking Italian migrants, I’m not afraid of a challenge and thrive in community spaces that bring people together.”

Marisa Bell

Zane Basic

Party affiliation: Liberal Party

Ensuring appropriate support and assistance reaches Mayo is one of the promises the Liberal Party’s candidate for the seat of Mayo Zane Basic is making if elected.

Having worked across many different industries over the years, from a construction labourer to the financial industry to senior parliamentary adviser in Canberra, the Liberal Party member says he understands the meaning of hard work and the commitment it takes to grow a small business.

Having lived and worked in the area for many years, Mr Basic also says he has seen the region’s infrastructure and services struggle to keep up with development, which is why delivering key upgrades for the people of Mayo while protecting the unique landscape that makes up the Hills, Fleurieu and Kangaroo Island region is important to him.

“There has been a severe lack of investment in the region in recent years, but I am committing to work within a future Coalition Government to ensure the appropriate support and assistance reaches Mayo,” he said.

“This includes improving infrastructure across Mayo – particularly our regional road network – improving services, including access to GPs and easing the cost-of-living burden on households, small businesses and farmers.

“I understand what people are going through on a daily basis, across the diverse communities of Mayo, and believe that, through a Coalition Government, I can advocate on their behalf.

“Only a Coalition Government can appropriately address the concerns facing local residents and only someone that forms part of that government can truly deliver for Mayo.”

Other campaign promises from an elected Dutton Coalition Government include $840 million to build the Greater Adelaide Freight Bypass and divert interstate freight around the Adelaide Hills, a 25 cents-a-litre reduction in the cost of petrol and diesel, and $9.4 billion for primary health care and mental health.

Simeon Bidwell

Party affiliation: Trumpet of Patriots

'Making Australia Great Again' is Trumpet of Patriots candidate for the seat of Mayo Simeon Bidwell's motto for his election campaign.

Mr Bidwell has several tertiary qualifications in Business Administration, Technology and Leadership, and decades of experience in many industries and sectors.

"We now live in an age where repressed freedoms, stagnating wages, excessive taxes, and unaffordable costs of living are our 'new normal,'" he said.

"I couldn't just sit back and watch my country and community deteriorate anymore, so I decided to run with the Trumpet of Patriots to 'MAGA' – Make Albo Go Away and Make Australia Great Again."

His top three priorities for the electorate include removing harmful legislation that negatively affects local households, businesses and farms, reducing taxes on locally produced and sold goods such as alcohol, and improving housing and transport infrastructure within Mayo to improve housing affordability and assist all local businesses.

If elected, he seeks to reduce the cost of living for households and improve the productivity of local farms and businesses, repeal of all wasteful government spending, allocate affordable housing and business development around rural city centres, improve transport infrastructure in the region such as dual-lane highways and high-speed rail, and promote local manufacturing and processing.

"I think I would be the best candidate for Mayo because of our need, both locally and nationally, to implement policies for strong economic growth, reduced cost of living pressures, affordable housing, improvements to infrastructure, reduce the debt, and cheaper energy and fuel," Mr Bidwell said.

"By implementing sound, common-sense policies that benefit all Australians, not just the select few lobbyists and foreign interest groups, we can see real change in Mayo that will improve the lives of every resident."

Genevieve Dawson-Scott

Party affiliation: Greens Party

Greens' candidate Genevieve Dawson-Scott says she is vying for the seat of Mayo for the party because she believes in a "better future for all children".

The Bridgewater resident is a mother, artist and marriage celebrant who also works in early childhood education and community events.

She has spent the majority of the last decade working with young children and families, and now runs a Hills-based community Kindergym, where she says she meets families every week who are struggling to cope with the cost of childcare, living and housing while raising small children.

One of the major issues Ms Dawson-Scott is passionate about is mental health.

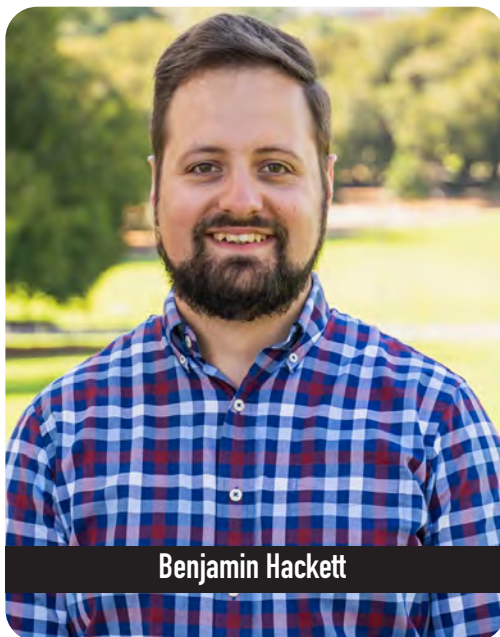

"I see the Greens policies as a source of hope – a hope for integrity and transparency in politics, for bold, brave changes to make our country and communities fairer, and real environmental action," she said.

"I've lost many friends to struggles with mental health, so an issue close to my heart is bringing mental healthcare into Medicare, along with dental care.

"The Greens continue to fight for this, to fight for free access to GPs, and to address a huge contributor to poor mental health – the housing crisis.

"I will be a voice for my community, for those who are afraid of the changing climate, and are looking for considered and caring leadership."

She will also fight to stop new coal and gas projects, invest in publicly owned renewable energy, ban native forest logging, and safeguard the River Murray, advocate for a cap on unlimited rent increases, and the phasing out of negative gearing and capital gains tax discounts, and push for an expansion of Medicare, free GP visits, and increased funding for regional healthcare services.

Benjamin Hackett

Party affiliation: Family First

Driving Family First's candidate for Mayo is a passion for "policies that make the daily lives of Australians better".

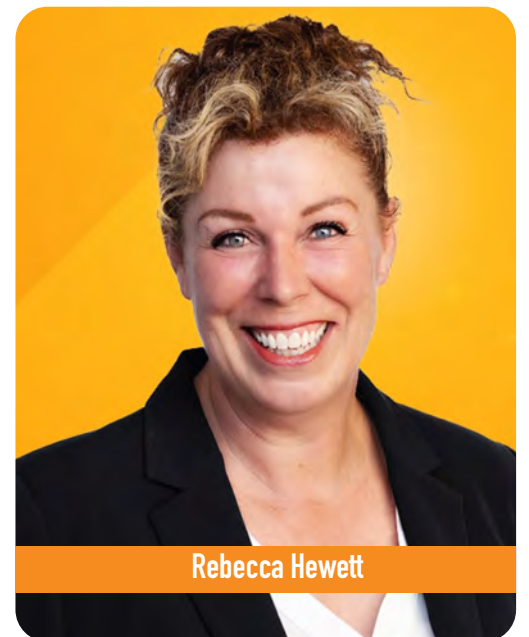

Benjamin Hackett grew up, studied, worked and currently lives in the east of Adelaide, residing with his wife and four children.

A "diligent and hardworking family man", he is actively involved in the community, volunteering in many capacities, including at his kids' school and in his local church.

Mr Hackett is passionate about policies that "make the daily lives of Australians better", whether it be clean streets, the cost of living or even social issues.

He is driven to ensure that what he has received from his family and community, he passes on with interest to his kids and wider community.

Some of his party's policies include making it an offence for teachers or social workers to hide from parents their child's decision to change gender, abolish anti-vilification and anti-discrimination law provisions, push for a Royal Commission in State and Federal Governments' handling of the COVID pandemic, weight the criminal justice system for young people towards compulsory attendance at rehabilitation programs, rather than prison for first offences, provide incentives through the tax system that make it attractive for married couples to have children, pause net zero policies, release more land and reduce red tape to free up supply and lower prices, pursue nuclear energy, phase out of poker machines, ban surrogacy and other forms of 'parent-denying' reproductive techniques such as egg and sperm donation, and reduce the size of government.

Rebecca Hewett

Party affiliation: One Nation

Cost-of-living measures, support for local farmers, and critical services like childcare and public transport are some of the major issues that are important to One Nation's candidate for the seat of Mayo Rebecca Hewett.

Currently a Mount Barker District councillor, Ms Hewett is standing for the Federal Election because she believes Mayo has not had strong representation in Canberra for decades.

Some of her campaign promises include halving the fuel excise, reducing electricity costs by 20 per cent by removing subsidies from the bill, lifting the tax-free threshold to $35K for self-funded retirees, slashing $90 billion a year in 'government waste', removing all tax from alcohol served in venues, removing GST from new home builds, and increasing bulk billing rates for Medicare.

Locally, Ms Hewett is advocating for the reinstatement of the Hahndorf bypass, the construction of the Meadows roundabout, and the completion of the duplication of the Victor Harbor Road.

She says she will strongly represent the people who come to her for help.

"I'm a fighter and I never give up," Ms Hewett said.

"I have a proven track record of pushing back against bad policies as an elected member of council.

"We will ban foreign ownership and protect our prime farmland from any further development, particularly wind and solar factories which are an environmental disaster.

"I will support the primary producers, ensuring they continue to have the right to farm and are supported in times of drought."

Batmobile is in town

By Deirdre Graham

Gilbert's Motor Museum has stepped into the realm of television with its latest exhibit – a Batmobile built by Batman car fanatic Jay Munzer.

The car he hand-built is "98 per cent" true to the 1960s television version and will be on display at the museum for six months.

"I especially loved the car, even more so than the show really," Mr Munzer said.

"When I was a kid, I would be yelling out to mum, 'the Batmobile is on this episode of Batman'."

"I had been thinking ever since my apprenticeship in 1988 as a panel beater, 'if I could build this and build that, why couldn't I build a Batmobile?'"

"And 25 years later I paid my house off and thought, 'well, I am doing it', and so I did."

In the late summer of 1965, an all-new Batman TV series was gearing up, and with Batman a superhero without superpowers, he needed a lot of gadgets to fight crime and a decent car was a must.

Custom car builder George Barris was given three weeks to build the original Batmobile, deciding to use an abandoned Futura concept car as a base.

The final #1 car featured a large array of bat-gadgets.

In addition to an 'atomic turbine engine', it had a nose-mounted chain slicer, lasers, rockets, an on-board telephone, radar, dash monitor, on-board computer and police beacon.

If needed, the #1 Batmobile was capable of a quick 180 'bat-turn' thanks to two rear-mounted 10' parachutes, and was also equipped with a smoke emitter and nail spreader to discourage pursuit.

Mr Munzer bought his kit version in 2011 and found he had to rebuild it from the ground up.

"It took eight years solid and it is still a work in progress," Mr Munzer said.

The car has been a hit wherever Mr Munzer has been able to transport it to, including at the Wayville Showgrounds one year when Hollywood star John Travolta took an interest.

"He asked me how much it cost and I said 'a house' and he laughed, stood up, and shook my hand," Mr Munzer said.

"I have even got Stan Lee, the inventor of Spiderman, to sign it for me."

"There were two movies made with the original Batmobile – one was in 1968 when they stopped making the TV series and 30 years later, they made a Return to the Batcave movie and used the Batmobile in it as well.

"That was the only time Batmobile appeared in a movie."

Mr Munzer believes his Batmobile is the only one in South Australia, while similar ones are owned in WA, Victoria, and possibly one in Queensland.

Gilbert's Motor Museum Assistant Manager Grant Chandler said the museum came across the car by chance.

"We only came about it by chance one day when Jay came in to visit the museum as a normal visitor and someone recognised him as the owner of the Batmobile that he had on display at the Strathalbyn Swap Meet about four years ago," Mr Chandler said.

"So, we got chatting, and we just worked out we could bring the car in and put it on display."

"At the end of the day, there is nothing like it in SA, (so) we are hoping people take the opportunity to come down and see it as it is such a rare car that you will probably never get to see again."

The complete television series of Batman will play on a screen alongside the vehicle.

The original #1 car fetched an eye watering US $4.2 million when sold at auction in January 2013.

Conveyancing and the impact of cyber security

As our world relies more and more on digital technology, cyber security is now more important than ever.

This is especially the case in the conveyancing industry, where sensitive personal and financial information is passed between parties daily.

Because we deal with personal and financial information, it makes the conveyancing industry an attractive target to those who want to access that information – hackers and scammers.

That's why at Strathalbyn Conveyancing, we take your privacy and data security seriously and stay on top of latest developments.

E-Signing

One of the biggest developments recently is the rise of e-signing.

Electronic signatures are a convenient, and efficient, way to sign documents from the comfort of your own home.

Is it secure?

But with this convenience comes an important question: is it secure?

The answer is yes, when the correct systems are in place.

Strathalbyn Conveyancing focuses on ensuring that all our systems and processes have the highest level of security surrounding them.

We constantly check and update these systems to match the rapid changes in digital technology.

We use secure electronic signing platforms with encryption and time-stamped verification to ensure your signature and information is safe, traceable and legally recognised.

Encryption uses a secret key to transform data into an unreadable format.

This means that only authorised parties are able to access the information.

It helps protect against cyberattacks, eavesdropping and ransomware.

Time Stamped Verification is a valuable part of digital signing practices.

It allows organisations to record when a document was signed and to verify the authenticity and integrity of that data.

Time stamps cannot be altered retroactively, so it can help detect if a digital item has been altered after it was originally created.

Handling sensitive information

The reality is that conveyancers will always need to share sensitive information with clients and other stakeholders in the property transfer process.

Your security is our priority, so we don't share this type of information in an email as email programs were not built to be a safe communication method.

Scammers often pose as legitimate solicitors, conveyancers, real estate agents or financial institutions, sending emails that appear to be authentic.

These emails usually request sensitive information or direct you to fraudulent websites.

Scammers have also been known to impersonate buyers, sellers or other parties in a property transaction, they send an email that appears to come from someone you are familiar with.

If you are in doubt, always phone the person that is sending the email to make sure they actually sent that email.

Ninety-five per cent of the time human error is why scammers gain access to sensitive information.

So always be suspicious of texts and emails asking for this type of information or pushing you to make a decision in a hurry.

How we minimise risk

Strathalbyn Conveyancing have in place a thorough and secure verification of identity process to prevent impersonation and unauthorised access in property transactions.

This reduces the risk of identity theft, fraud and money laundering, and safeguards the integrity of the property market.

We communicate directly with you throughout the entire property process to ensure that you know what is happening, when and why.

And, of course, we immediately notify you if anything appears unusual.

And we do this via phone calls rather than emails.

Cyber threats are constantly evolving, which is why we stay up-to-date with the latest security technology.

Your peace of mind is our priority, we ensure you can sign with confidence and peace of mind.

We make it easier for you!

Strathalbyn Conveyancing are qualified professionals who guide you through the legal process of transferring property

Turbocharge your super before June

More than half of us set a new financial goal at the beginning of 2025, according to ASIC's Moneysmart website.

While most include saving money and paying down debts, the months prior to June 30 provide an opportunity to review super balances and look at ways to boost retirement savings.

concessional contributions from the previous five financial years and only available to those whose super accounts are less than $500,000.

There are strict rules around this type of contribution, and they are complex, so it's important to get advice before making a catch-up contribution.

What to consider first

If you have more than one super account, consolidating into one account may be an option.

Consolidating super could save you paying multiple fees, however, if you have insurance inside super, you may risk losing it, so contact us before making any changes.<sup>i</sup>

Downsizer contributions

If you are over 55 years, have owned your home for 10 years and are looking to sell, you may be able to make a non-concessional super contribution of as much as $300,000 per person or $600,000 if you are a couple.

You must make the contribution to your super within 90 days of receiving the sale proceeds of your home.

Boosting retirement savings

Making additional contributions on top of the employer paid super guarantee could make a big difference to your retirement balance thanks to the magic of compounding interest.

Spouse contributions

There are two ways you can make spouse super contributions, you could:

- Split contributions you have already made to your own super by rolling them over to your spouse's super – known as a contributions-splitting super benefit.
- Contribute directly to your spouse's super, treated as their non-concessional contribution, which may entitle you to a tax offset of $540 per year if they earn less than $40,000 per annum

A few ways to boost your super before June 30

Concessional contributions (before tax)

These contributions can be made from either your pre-tax salary via a salary-sacrifice arrangement through your employer or using after-tax money and depositing funds directly into your super account.

Apart from increasing your super balance, you may pay less tax (depending on your current marginal rate).<sup>ii</sup>

Check to see what your current year to date contributions are, so any additional contributions you make don't exceed the concessional (before-tax) contributions cap, which is $30,000 from July 1, 2024.<sup>iii</sup>

Non-concessional contributions (after tax)

This type of contribution is also called a personal contribution.

It's important not to exceed the cap on contributions, which is set at $120,000 from July 1, 2024.<sup>iv</sup>

If you exceed the concessional contributions cap (before tax) of $30,000 per annum, any additional contributions made are taxed at your marginal tax rate less a 15 per cent tax offset to account for the contributions tax already paid by your super fund.

Exceeding the non-concessional contributions cap will see a tax of 47 per cent levied on excess contributions.

Carry forward (catch-up) concessional contributions

If you've had a break from work or haven't reached the maximum contributions cap for the past five years, this type of super contribution could help boost your balance, especially if you've received a lump sum of money.

These contributions are unused

People are encouraged to review their super balances and look at ways to boost their retirement savings.

Event hits the brakes for 2025

Thousands of boat-lovers and families will miss out on the popular community event Aquafest this year after the Goolwa Aquatic Club reported issues with public liability insurance.

The free, two-day annual event attracts a variety of vintage, classic, and modern race and speedboats, from the early 1950s to the present, which give “spirited demonstrations” around a course.

The weekend typically rounds out the season of monthly picnic days for members, which were also interrupted this year.

No claims or accidents have been made during its 15 years of running.

The only other interruption during its time was two years during the COVID pandemic.

“We have a very good history of running that event over 15 years,” committee member, Neil Oatway, said.

“We’ve had some excellent years on the water down here.

“Watch this space because we haven’t given up.”

Last year’s event was described as the “best one” yet by organisers after attracting its biggest crowd of about 3000 spectators.

Community members spread out on the lawns to watch the demonstrations, browse cars on display, and enjoy food trucks.

The weekend is thanks to passionate volunteers who pour hours of time into its organisation.

Captain Clements named top Tiger

A good crowd saw Adam Clements claim the 36th AJ Potts Cricketer of the Year in his first year back at Langhorne Creek Cricket Club, after a successful stint at Kensington for the past decade.

A mountain of runs and a stack of wickets was the recipe for his success, which also included an Association century and State Country century for Fleurieu and Districts, to cap off a great year.

Clements led the way with 45 wickets and 729 runs in a stellar year across all formats for the Tigers.

Clements was voted in as the club captain, succeeding Brodie O'Dea, leading the club to its fourth minor premiership in five years, falling short at the penultimate hurdle, with a loss to Lobethal at Langhorne Creek.

Veteran Ben Warren took home the batting average, whilst Darcy Paech took home the fielding trophy.

15-year-old all-rounder Toby Phillips capped off a great season winning the B Grade player of the year and the bowling trophy.

Cade Tonkin was the C Grade player of the year, while Jack Hall claimed the D Grade player of the year.

Murray Bridge resident, Riley Stapleton won the LCCC Junior Cricketer of the Year after winning the association player of the year for the under 14's.

Stapleton had a great year with the bat and ball, leading the runs and wickets in his first year as a Tiger.

Adam Clements topped off a great night when he was awarded the Matt Lee Memorial Award for an outstanding achievement or contribution to or in the best interest of the Langhorne Creek Cricket Club.

Former long-time President and volunteer, Geoff Warren took home the Trevor Potts Volunteer Award.

Mount Compass Netball Club

Funding commitment made to Mount Compass Netball Club

The Coalition Government has committed to delivering $120,000 to resurface the Mount Compass Netball Club courts should it win the Federal Election.

The Mount Compass Netball Club is a thriving local netball club, providing opportunities for players of all ages to stay active, develop new skills and build lifelong friendships.

However, its community-owned netball courts are in poor condition and require urgent resurfacing to ensure player safety.

Liberal Candidate for Mayo Zane Basic announced the funding on Saturday and said the funding commitment would ensure that club members have access to improved community sporting infrastructure.

"Local sporting organisations like the Mount Compass Netball Club play an important role in the health and wellbeing of our community, and women and girls deserve to have access to a safe playing environment," Basic said.

"An upgrade to the existing court surface will allow the Mount Compass Netball Club to continue to host key sporting events and cater to their growing membership."

The Coalition is investing in community sporting infrastructure to reduce barriers to participation in sport and encourage more Australians to get active.

Mount Barker ‘still in the game’ for Gather Round

Mount Barker District Council has reassured locals it remains “firmly in the ring” to explore how it can feature in future Gather Rounds in South Australia.

Now that Lyndoch Oval was ready to host, it is expected that one or more games will be played there over the remaining two years of the State Government’s current agreement with the AFL.

But Mount Barker District Council Mayor Leach said discussions were ongoing with the AFL regarding future programming at the Summit Sport and Recreation Park (SSRP).

“While the Barossa has shown its ability to successfully host games this year, Mount Barker will continue to explore how we can feature in future Gather Rounds in South Australia,” he said.

“Gather Round brought national attention to Mount Barker and gave our local fans the rare opportunity to experience elite-level AFL in their own backyard.

“Our hat remains firmly in the ring.

“We are always ready to contribute to major events brought into the state by the government.

“It’s a great initiative, not just for sport, but for regional economies and the wider South Australian community.”

Mayor Leach confirmed council remains open to future Gather Round opportunities and continues to work closely with the AFL.

He was hopeful that Mount Barker’s track record of delivering major events will continue to be recognised by both the AFL and the State Government.

“No decision has been made to step away from hosting,” Mayor Leach said.

“While the Barossa has now hosted the Gather Round, we continue to advocate for a model that includes two regional venues – Mount Barker and the Barossa.

“We don’t see it as a competition between us; we want both regions – both of South Australia’s premier wine and food destinations – to share in the success.

“We shouldn’t be constrained by logistical challenges of preparing two regional grounds – the broader benefits to community, tourism, and the economy far outweigh those challenges.”

“Whether it’s Gather Round, pre-season matches or elite-level training and development, these events have enormous value, not only for community development but also for our region’s economy and tourism sector.”

In addition he noted council is still working to make the oval a place to host Hills Football League games.

Murray Bridge Rifle Club

A total of 11 hopefuls turned out at the Deed Range at Monarto on the Saturday of the Easter Weekend to compete in the Murray Bridge Rifle Club’s second annual ‘Whiskey Shoot’.

The shoot took place at a range of 800 metres and the strong winds made for very challenging conditions.

Top in F-Class on the day were John Cranwell (FO) with 111.05, Adrian Conlon (FO) with 110.03, and Gordon Harrison (FS) 108.03.

The prize bottle, however, was decided on handicap, where John Cranwell emerged victorious by the barest of margins ahead of Harro, 117.4 to 117.2.

In TR, Robert Paech and Greg Traeger were hard to separate off-rifle, with Rob scoring 94.05 and Greg 93.07.

Handicap, on the other hand, was much clearer, with Greg finishing six points clear on 107.4 to claim the prize.

There were more than a few ‘birds’ shot given the conditions, but emerging with the Maggie Awards this week were Andrew Heard in TR and Peter Casley in F-Class, both with two.

Competition continues next week from 1000 yards.

Shooters will be hoping for better conditions from the longest range!

Strathalbyn stars feature in U16 state champions line-up

Two of Strathalbyn’s young footy stars were part of the undefeated South Australian Under 16 Girls team that claimed victory last weekend for the third consecutive year in the national championships.

After beating Western Australia in a 13-point win in the first game, South Australia went on to eclipse the Brisbane Lions Academy in the second game by 56 points.

Named in the squad were two Strathalbyn players Marley Tape and Sienna Ballantyne.

Tape played in both games, while Ballantyne played in the second.

Funding promised for dirt kart track upgrade

By Giorgina McKay

A pre-emptive funding commitment by the Liberal Party would see Strathalbyn’s dirt kart racing track resurfaced to ensure a safe and competitive environment for its users.

The Dutton Liberal Government has promised to deliver $40,000 to the Angas Go Kart Club if elected to resurface the existing track.

Liberal candidate for Mayo Zane Basic said the commitment recognises the important role of local sporting organisations in the electorate.

“The Angas Go Kart Club is a vibrant part of the Strathalbyn community, regularly hosting competitors and spectators from across our state,” he said.

“It is a unique dirt circuit, but wear and tear has impacted the racetrack surface.

“It urgently needs an upgrade is to ensure the safety of participants.

“This funding will allow Angas Go Kart Club to support their growing membership and to host local and regional events.”

The commitment has allegedly been in the works for a number of years, with volunteers working hard behind the scenes to make it happen.

Angas Go Kart Club President Shane Stephens said the funds would put the club in a positive step for years to come.

“The club sees this as a step forward to get funding to actually grow our sport within the township,” he said.

“It’s very hard to get any dollars come through the club of significance to get the club to go forward, so it’s a positive step in the right direction for us.

“Our track being dirt, we lose a lot of surface area, so (the resurfacing) is in need every single year if possible if clubs can afford it, otherwise we’ve got to make do with what we’ve got.”

If the party fails to get elected the club will be in contact with the other parties concerned.

Clayton Bay’s flying success

By Tara Nash

Community members and flying enthusiasts recently tried out aeromodelling during South Coast Model Aerosport Club’s open day.

The Clayton Bay club hosted the weekend celebration of aeromodelling, which included camping, a raffle, sidewalk sale and flight simulator.

Strathalbyn Ladies Golf

Penny Geue’s fashion statement

A Par round was scheduled for Ladies golf on Wednesday, not everybody’s favourite competition.

Captain Penny got everyone sorted and put on her golf shoes ready to get going.

But the shoes hurt her ailing foot badly, so she decided to play in her thongs.

This did not upset her game at all, as she managed to win the day.

So, it does not matter if you play in a very expensive pair of golf shoes or a $10 pair of thongs from K Mart, you can still be a winner.

Anne Semple finished with the same score as Penny, but the winner was decided on a count back.

Coming in third was Amanda Vardon, who had a good round which included a birdie/gobbler on the seventh, these helping the score considerably.

Tonya Merritt is smiling again after her game on Wednesday.

Not only did she win the NTP on the ninth hole, but also scored a birdie on the eighth and a birdie/gobbler on the 14th.

Good work Tonya.

Kerrie Edwards also had a birdie in the 16th.

Marie Kingsbury was in the golf news again this week, as she managed to put her shot right next to a substantial tree.

Not put off by this, she managed to wrap her arms around the tree and got the shot on its way.

I was a bit concerned that a few bull ants may have been hiding in the tree trunk and decide to attack her.

Speaking of sore feet, another one of our regular golfers, Cara Eastwood, was missing on Wednesday as she was home nursing a damaged heel.

She reckoned it was very painful, so get well soon Cara.

The corellas were out in full force on Wednesday.

Their squawking and scratching around the greens presented a real problem for us golfers.

Our social organiser Di Krutli has been busy planning our social activities and she has been liaising with Charmaine Aplin, who now lives at Murray Bridge, to have a social game of golf at the Bridge, then lunch at Charmaine’s new home adjacent to the golf course.

Sounds like a fun day.

Di is also putting together a stay overnight at Swan Reach and a couple of games of golf in early June.

Never a dull moment for us golf girls.

Penny Geue and Anne Semple discussing their win.

Marie Kingsbury in a tricky situation.

Strathalbyn Golf

Peter Drury blows in with a par win

By Perry Jones

Despite strong gusty winds whipping up plenty of dust, bark and leaves, Peter Drury overcame the conditions on the Strathalbyn Golf course last Saturday to win the Par competition on a count back in a field of 48.

Peter playing in C Grade and being one of the early morning starters finished with +3, to beat A-Grader in Captain Graeme Bertholini on a count back, the latter saying it broke the myth that the captain could not be beaten in a count back.

Next in the order of merit were four players on +2 in Kym Nelson, Ben Clark, who hit a lot of sound second shots, Amanda Vardon and relatively new player in Bradley Clements.

Erik Heyns, just back from South Africa, had a steady round to finish with +1, going around the course square most of the time, even sorting out his problem holes that go around that dam this time in getting on the green on the seventh and 16th in three both times to make par. But he did have a bit of trouble off the tee on the par three 15th when his tee shot went into the creek, luckily getting out of there with his next shot but still having a minus.

Michael Beasley was looking good until he picked up a minus on the 15th, 16th and 17th holes, to end the day at -3.

Playing partner Paul Coombe had another day to forget saying he had no co-ordination in his hitting, taking until the seventh hole before he had a clean iron shot.

He scrubbed eight holes during his round, finding himself in the dam on the 16th but amazingly got out of there to still record a par for the hole, also missing out on a par during his round when only 30cm from the hole, he finishing with -5 for the day.

Damon Mayes had another entertaining day on the course when he came in with -7, losing count of the number of scrubs as he spent plenty of times picking up before he reached the green, having just three positive holes for the round, getting one on the last hole to at least finish on a bit of a high.

On the fourth Damon found himself at the base of a tree trying to clear the ball with a left-hand swing only to top the ball twice and on the 10th found his ball rolling into the drain on the right and finishing up against to concrete outlet to ruin that hole.

Damon in scrubbing many holes said he spent more time holding the flag for the Bell boys than putting himself.

Ben McLeod, an early starter, certainly found the wind helping his tee shot on the par three 17th when the ball went left and finished up on the 12th fairway.

Ben had a birdie on the par three 15th and was in line for nearest the pin but that prize disappeared during the day with Grant Ewins taking that award and in the end Ben had just four plus holes.

Ben, after his round in the morning, said he was always one shot off squaring the hole but was happy to be running second in A grade at the time, but his -8 was going to see him drop to 16th and last place in A grade for the day, and also finding himself in a battle with four other players fighting for the privilege of being in the overall last position for the day.

With him on that score were Brenton Welk whose troubles started early, John Owen, who played a magnificent fourth shot to the green on the par five 12th as the club went high up in the air while he missed hitting the ball, and Gordon Robson showing a distinct lack of direction.

The lucky last placing went to Des Kelly with his -8, having swept all before him in recent weeks.

Des had a reasonable first nine to be just -2 but on the back nine he scored a demoralising -6, saying that was the worst he had ever played and that it was the first time he had ever finished last.

Brian Simpson was back for another go after his problems the Saturday before and at least he got a lift for the second nine with partner Lloyd Jackson.

Not that it helped his golf that much finishing with -6, Lloyd managing -4 the same as Phillip Addison also in the group along with Amanda Vardon who put them to shame with +2 for the round.

On the ninth Amanda, who was waiting on the ladies’ tee to hit off a lot further up the fairway than the men’s tee, sensibly decided to get behind a big tree near her hit off point, along with Alan Haberfield whose tee shot from the eighth was next to the big tree, seeing Brian was about to hit his second shot towards the green only to slam the ball into the trunk of the big tree.

On this hole Lloyd had a long drive and had a simple shot to reach the green but the ball only travelled about 20 metres, however he was on in three and left with an easy putt for par only to have another poor shot.

Ken Lester, in going around with Kym Nelson, Alan Haberfield and Gordon Robson, matched their good and bad efforts on the day and like Alan finished with -4.

Ken had a bit of trouble on the 10th when his tee shot was reasonably long but in the trees to the left of the fairway, then botching his next shot but still running the ball onto the fairway, then trying to find a path to the green through the trees on the right before getting on the green for two over par six.

On this hole Habers found his second shot in the drain on the left and finished with five as his putt lipped the cup, while Gordon, after a long putt from off the green missing, also had to settle for a five.

However, Nelson was on a roll with his third par in a row.

While Gordon picked up on the 11th, Ken with a five still made it a plus, and Nelson on in two got his par four for another plus but Alan with his third hit managed to run the ball up the rise onto the green and into the hole for a birdie.

On the 12th Kym had another par, Alan picked up a plus and Gordon recorded yet another minus but Ken stole the show when off the tee he had an ‘airy’, saying he was worried that Welky, standing to the right and waiting to cross over that fairway, might be in his line of fire.

On the 13th Gordon hooked his tee shot left to be next to the ladies’ tee at the bottom of the rise but his second shot saved him as he still squared the hole, while Nelson’s run of pars ended as he missed his putt.

Nelson was in trouble again on the 14th when trying to get out from the trees on the low side of the green, seeing his chip shot go about 10 feet on his way to scrubbing the hole, as did Gordon having been on the hill above the green.

On this hole Alan squared things up while Ken gained a plus with his five, mentioning that the first time around on this green (fifth) he picked up not realising he still had a shot left to square the hole.

The par three 15th was a minus all round as Gordon and Ken both finished in the creek off the tee, Ken almost safe as the ball bounced over the creek but then rolled back in.

Both then played their next shot from the creek to get out, although Ken’s hit almost rolled back to him on the hard ground.

While Nelson and Alan both just missed birdie chances on the 16th, but still gained a plus, Ken was out of business early when with his tee shot nicely bent the ball right, right into the creek and lost.

The par three 17th and Ken redeemed himself with a plus as Gordon picked up, while Alan and Kym were looking at birdie putts.

Kym sunk his long putt but Alan missing a much shorter putt.

On the last Alan was not too pleased with his tee shot but he did play a better shot in hitting his tee afterwards and he did get on the green in three before having a bogie five.

Nelson was on in three to get his par but Ken with his third shot finished up against the boundary fence at the back of the green.

Ken then with a one-handed swing hit the back of the wire netting with all the debris from the day flying out, along with the ball which landed on the green, still a chance to square the hole but finishing with a double bogie, as Gordon had to be content with his -8.

Alan had the task of drawing the cards out to have a go at winning the $225 jackpot putting prize, told by the captain not to draw his own card out, which he didn’t but captain Graeme had his drawn out along with president Randall Pitt and treasurer Derek Keane but they all missed the money.

Results Par Saturday April 19th.
