Questions over roadside vegetation... SAFETY CONCERN

By Tara Nash

Concerns about overgrown roadside vegetation across the Alexandrina Council region were raised during Monday night's meeting, with residents calling for action to improve safety standards.

Resident Sam Borrett made deputation highlighting the issue, showing photos of roadside reflector posts, safety barriers and signs that were covered by overgrown vegetation.

"Unfortunately, roadside maintenance – in particular tree trimming within the Alexandrina Council – is observed to be almost non-existent," he said.

"This lack of maintenance has led to roads becoming overgrown and unsafe for motorists to use without risks of damage to their vehicles from vegetation."

Mr Borrett also claimed that in some cases across the council region, trees are exceeding council's rules for growth by metres.

Similarly, Nangkita dairy farmer, Brad Connor, voiced frustration about the challenges faced by those in the agricultural industry.

He said workers need to manoeuvre around obstructive trees which is particularly hard while moving tractors or machinery.

"From a safety point of view, it is quite serious... everyday there'd be a close call," he said.

"You pretty much spend most of your time on the wrong side of the road trying to avoid the trees, which is a real worry to me.

"It's affecting the business – to get feed delivered or to get livestock picked up... you have to explain to drivers... areas to watch out for."

DRIVING UP FUNDS

By Tara Nash

Goolwa-based Wildlife Welfare Organisation SA was among volunteer groups to receive a State Government grant funded by the sale of koala number plates.

When purchasing the plates, drivers make a one-off $50 donation which go towards the state's volunteer wildlife rescue and rehabilitation sector.

In this latest round, 17 not-for-profit wildlife rescue organisations had a share in more than $54,000 to help volunteers better care for sick and injured native animals.

Wildlife Welfare Organisation SA received a $5000 grant to purchase incubators and tanks to assist in the rehabilitation of reptiles and turtles.

This is the fifth incubator for the charity, with the others typically full with sick animals as a form of treatment.

"Quite often when animals come in, they go straight into the incubators for some warmth first before they get fluids," wildlife rescue centre manager, Justin Biddle, said.

"People really underestimate how much warmth can help an animal.

"This time of year, we're also getting lots of baby birds which can't regulate their body temperature well."

The tanks will support turtles who often have fractured shells after being hit by cars, or support the growth of baby turtles to help them against predators.

From parking lot to produce plot

By Amarli Wight

Cittaslow Goolwa Inc. have announced plans for a new community garden in the heart of Goolwa.

The new garden will be situated behind the Goolwa Children's Centre (GCC), following a long-term lease signed by the Minister for Education, Training and Skills, Blair Boyer.

The idea for the new garden originated from long-standing member Sue Gelade.

When she was delivering vegetables to GCC from their previous garden, she had to park in a large empty lot behind the centre.

She mentioned the idea of starting a garden in the lot to the boss, and "her eyes lit up and she got all excited," Ms Gelade said.

The current community garden has been up and running since 2008, but Cittaslow Goolwa President, Michael Keen, said they are currently facing a rodent problem with rats digging under the fence and eating their produce.

Another limitation of the old garden is access; the garden is out of the way, so children aren't able to be involved, and it limits access for those with mobility issues.

Mr Keen said the lease for the new garden took two years of negotiating and predicts the project will take 15 to 18 months to complete.

"Our first part of the project is to build a vermin-proof fence, which is what we're seeking funds for right now," Mr Keen said.

"We hope to establish a fruit forest along (the) pathway, so people can just pick fruits as they come along.

"Then within the garden itself will be all raised garden beds, which will mean it's accessible for people with mobility issues.

"There'll be a meeting space somewhere so that when the community wants to do events, we've got somewhere to actually have a meeting."

Currently, the garden receives financial support from the Goolwa Community Bank — Bendigo Bank Goolwa and District.

The new garden will build upon the existing relationship between Cittaslow Goolwa Inc. and GCC.

"Having Cittaslow locating right next to the Children's Centre will be a fantastic opportunity to build that partnership, not only receiving the fresh food but also playing an active part in learning plant growing and cultivating the fresh produce," GCC Director, Donna McAuley, said.

“ There'll be a meeting space somewhere
so that when the community wants to do events, we've got somewhere to actually have a meeting... ”

— Cittaslow Goolwa
President, Michael Keen

"There are also plans to run family cooking lessons/groups using the fresh produce."

Members of both GCC and Cittaslow Goolwa Inc. are excited for the new adventure, including one of the founding members, Gaynor Jones.

"This is going to be a proper community garden, with the community involved," Ms Jones said.

"I'm 91, so I don't know how much longer I'll have on this earth, but I hope we get it going while I can still be involved."

Volunteers needed for historic meeting place

By Tara Nash

Community members are being called on to help breathe new life into the historic Belvidere Soldiers Memorial Hall, which has hosted milestone occasions, dances and meetings for more than a century.

The hall was originally built to honour Belvidere locals who served in World War I and officially opened in September 24, 1921.

Over the years, it was known as one of the best dance halls, hosted countless gatherings and was the home for the Ag Bureau for many years.

Speaking on behalf of the committee members, secretary, Tina Dewhurst, recently gave a deputation during a council meeting, outlining some of the pressures the hall is under with the “most urgent challenge” being recruiting new volunteers.

The committee aims to attract a range of ages and create a community hub and meeting place, to help protect the longevity of the hall.

The committee aimed to seek help from the council with understanding and interpreting the constitution and addressing the rising insurance costs, while thanking them for their annual contribution of $1000 towards this.

Mrs Dewhurst also asked whether council has a list of tradespeople who can assist with the hall maintenance.

“Belvidere Hall has been at the heart of our community for more than a century,” she said.

“In a small community like ours, the hall was never just a building.

“It was where neighbours connected, friendships grew, and traditions were passed on.”

Belvidere Memorial Hall volunteers: Sue and Peter Eckert, Ben Weckert, secretary Tina Dewhurst, Richard Prusa and interim chair Kimberly Fleming, encourage other community members to get involved. Photo: Tara Nash

Located on Langhorne Creek Road – between Strathalbyn and Langhorne Creek – the much-loved hall is one of 10 owned by the community in the Alexandrina Council.

Committee member and past chairman, Richard Prusa, described it as an “integral part” of his family’s life, who have sentimental memories of the hall which hosted their milestone birthdays.

“I just like being part of the community – being local, it’s something that’s special to me,” he said.

“I’m not from Australia, so becoming part of a local community in Australia is pretty exciting.”

Some of the volunteering duties are maintenance, clean-up, mowing lawns and washing floors.

Mr Prusa also described it as a great place for community groups, with good acoustics and lighting, a functional kitchen and toilet.

The hall will also bring the community together for its annual general meeting and upcoming barbecue on October 30 from 6pm.

New free workshops on caring for land

In a changing climate, a clear plan is one of the most powerful tools land managers can have.

To support farmers and land managers in adapting to a changing climate and improving the health and resilience of natural features on their properties, Landscapes Hills and Fleurieu is rolling out a series of practical workshops designed to help both large and small-scale land managers strengthen their property’s readiness for the future.

Focused on practical solutions and long-term sustainability, the workshops – which include an upcoming one at Strathalbyn – will support land managers to create tailored action plans that boost the health and productivity of natural assets such as soil, watercourses, native vegetation and revegetation areas.

Developing a property action plan is a critical step for land managers looking to apply for grants or seek co-investment.

“These workshops reflect our commitment to supporting land managers through the Landscapes Hills and Fleurieu Stewardship Program,” stewardship team leader, Will Hannaford, said.

“By helping land managers plan for the future and care for their natural assets, we’re working together to build long-term sustainability and resilience for our landscapes across the region.”

Themes of the workshops will cover a wide range of topics, including soil care, weed control, managing farm emissions, carbon markets, green finance, healthy watercourses and more.

The events are designed to support all land managers, from large broadacre producers to those with smaller lifestyle blocks.

All attendees will learn valuable tools and insights to support their role in protecting and enhancing the local landscape.

Whether people are just getting started with a property action plan or looking to refine their current approach, these workshops offer expert guidance and a chance to connect with others who are navigating similar challenges.

An inspiring free event ‘Lay of the Land - Balancing productivity with care for natural assets’ will be held at Strathalbyn on November 27.

Landscapes Hills and Fleurieu is working with local experts and land managers to deliver several events to help create local property action plans, aiming to boost productivity, environmental stewardship and long-term sustainability.

This seminar brings together industry experts, buyers and financiers to explore how managing natural assets can unlock sustainability credentials, access premium markets, and support green finance.

With growing global and consumer demands for sustainability, learn how to turn this momentum into real benefits for your farm business and the environment.

This project is supported by the Australian Government through funding from the Natural Heritage Trust under the Climate-Smart Agriculture Program.

These events are run in-conjunction with the Landscapes Hills and Fleurieu Stewardship Program.

Events are being uploaded regularly. For details and to register, visit: collections.humanitix.com/stewardshipinactionevents

Overgrown roadside vegetation sparks discussion

By Tara Nash

Concerns about overgrown roadside vegetation across the Alexandrina Council region were raised during Monday night's meeting, with residents calling for action to improve safety standards.

Resident Sam Borrett made deputation highlighting the issue, showing photos of roadside reflector posts, safety barriers and signs that were covered by overgrown vegetation.

"Unfortunately, roadside maintenance – in particular tree trimming within the Alexandrina Council – is observed to be almost non-existent," he said.

"This lack of maintenance has led to roads becoming overgrown and unsafe for motorists to use without risks of damage to their vehicles from vegetation."

Mr Borrett also claimed that in some cases across the council region, trees are exceeding council's rules for growth by metres.

Similarly, Nangkita dairy farmer, Brad Connor, voiced frustration about the challenges faced by those in the agricultural industry.

He said workers often need to manoeuvre around obstructive trees which is particularly hard driving tractors or moving machinery.

"From a safety point of view, it is quite serious... everyday there'd be a close call," he said.

"You pretty much spend most of your time on the wrong side of the road trying to avoid the trees, which is a real worry to me."

"It's affecting the business – to get feed delivered or to get livestock picked up... you have to explain to drivers... areas to watch out for."

The Milang Ag Bureau has reportedly made recommendations to council for areas that need priority attention.

Cr Sue Miller said both community members articulated the issues faced in the rural areas of the council, agreeing that surrounding councils are keeping a higher standard of roadside maintenance.

As part of his deputation, Mr Borrett suggested two options to council: firstly, to make it easier for council's workers to report vegetation they believe is significantly overgrown.

And secondly, to reduce the need for contractors, and instead, complete the work in-house.

The council will hold a workshop addressing roadside tree pruning and challenges associated with roadside vegetation management on October 27.

Some councillors also hoped it would be considered in the next budget.

Cr Bill Coomans floated the idea of allowing farmers to undertake some of the remedial work themselves, especially around their own properties, an idea supported by Mr Connor and Mayor Keith Parkes.

Mayor Parkes believed the solution worked in Victoria after one of the worst bushfires in the state's history in 2009, with roadside vegetation playing a major role in its spread.

The state implemented a change to allow farmers to help with management, which in turn significantly reduced the burden and has resulted in neater roadsides.

Another example offered was of Kangaroo Island.

"I was at Kangaroo Island a month after the bushfires," Mayor Parkes said.

"There were (some) paddocks that were absolutely untouched, and the roadsides were a charred mess where the fire had gone down the roadside vegetation."

Future of Festival of Fine Music in doubt

By Deirdre Graham

The long-term future of the Festival of Fine Music is now in doubt, with next year's offering canned due to lack of funds.

It follows the cancellation of this year's festival, that typically supports about 20 classical musicians, when organisers were unable to secure a State Government grant which would have allowed it to go ahead.

Adelaide Hills Chamber Players Artistic Director, Brian Chatterton, said the decision to pull the plug had been made – yet again.

"This time I had to pull the plug because the advance sales were well below what we would estimate would eventually reach minimum target," Mr Chatterton said.

"Early bird sales finished (recently) and we hadn't even reached 10 per cent of capacity, whereas normally we would reach 30 to 40 per cent capacity at the end of early bird, and that would give us enough confidence to, with enough selling time, get it up to target."

"But, unfortunately, we are not going to make it, so we have had to cancel the programs planned for January 2026."

Mr Chatterton said the festival had provided small ensemble pieces for communities in areas such as Goolwa, and across the Fleurieu and Adelaide Hills.

"I can't quite work out why (sales have been so low), because normally our database is very supportive," he said.

"I suspect that cost of living is starting to bite in, and people don't have as much disposable income as they might have had previously."

"My door is always open (to a return in 2027), but I would have to say I am very pessimistic."

"I have very little reason to be enthusiastic, and it just could be that string orchestras and instrumental work, which have been the dominant offerings in summer, (are) just not attracting the people it used to attract."

Mr Chatterton said the festival would have provided summer income for a number of classical musicians.

"It is an important part of their earning power for the year, to be able to do that sort of thing," he said.

"If there is a wonderful benefactor out there who can see the value of these things, and help us keep the flag flying...."

"There is not a lot more I can say, I think, because just by going by hard evidence, it is not a happy look."

Driving up support for wildlife

By Tara Nash

Goolwa-based Wildlife Welfare Organisation SA was among volunteer groups to recently receive a State Government grant funded by the sale of koala number plates. When purchasing the special plates, drivers make a one-off $50 donation which go towards the state's volunteer wildlife rescue and rehabilitation sector. In this latest round, 17 not-for-profit wildlife rescue organisations had a share in more than $54,000 to help volunteers better care for sick and injured native animals. Wildlife Welfare Organisation SA received a $5000 grant to purchase incubators and tanks to assist in the rehabilitation of reptiles and turtles.

This is the fifth incubator for the charity, with the others typically full with sick animals as a form of treatment. "Quite often when animals come in, they go straight into the incubators for some warmth first before they get fluids," wildlife rescue centre manager, Justin Biddle, said. "People really underestimate how much warmth can help an animal. "This time of year, we're also getting lots of baby birds which can't regulate their body temperature well." The tanks will support turtles who often have fractured shells after being hit by cars, or support the growth of baby turtles to help them against predators. When the weather warms up, turtles are often on the move trying to find bigger bodies of water, and can also travel kilometres to lay eggs. Mr Biddle encouraged drivers to slow down, and if a turtle is spotted on the road, to pull over and inspect it for possible injuries. If the turtle appears okay, he recommended moving them to the side of the road they were heading towards as they have a good internal compass. The organisation also previously received a grant of $3500 through the same initiative for enclosures for injured echidnas and lizards to complete their rehabilitation. A third round of grant funding will open next year.

Chris shares her story on breast cancer

For Breast Cancer Awareness Month, The Southern Argus editor Deirdre Graham sat down with Chris Watson from the support group Strathalbyn Pink Plus who shared her story...

In 2009 at the age of 41, Chris Watson had her first meeting with breast cancer. Chris won the battle, before being diagnosed again in August last year, where she won again. She is a big advocate for early screening, and having them regularly.

"In 2009 we had a friend in a group of us, and her mum had it twice, and she was right into us going at the age of 40 to SA Breast Screen, as from 40 it is free," Chris said.

"She said 'come on, go, go, go' and I thought 'Oh, yeah', but I had had a couple of issues that had nothing to do with breast cancer, and the doctor had said to me 'you (could) go for a mammogram', so... I went for my first mammogram and that is when they found pre-invasive breast cancer (DCIS).

"It definitely took me by a big surprise, I always thought I would know if I had cancer, that I would be sick, (so) if I had let that go until I felt it, I would be in trouble, it would have spread elsewhere."

Her doctors said she had dodged a bullet. What followed was surgery and a lengthy regimen of radiotherapy, with treatment stretching into four or five months.

"With radiotherapy there are a lot of side effects, as in burning and that sort of thing," Chris said.

"Tiredness is one of the biggest things. At that stage, I had to do six weeks, and I travelled every day for six weeks, the only time I didn't travel was the weekend, I had the weekend off.

"For me, I was really lucky, I don't know if I healed better or not, but I probably had a bit of redness and a bit of tenderness, but no blistering."

The second time around, the diagnosis wasn't such a surprise as her doctors had been keeping an eye on something suspicious for a number of years – but Chris had an additional problem of a bulged disc that also needed treatment at the same time.

"The first time I didn't know too many people who had actually had it and had got out of it," Chris said.

"I think when I went through it last year I was a bit more happy to do the whole treatment because I knew it could be OK.

"However, I was meant to start treatment in October, but on the date I was meant to travel (for radiotherapy) we had been away and I got back and could hardly walk, let alone drive (because of the bulged disc)."

The doctors believed the delay would be OK, but Chris' mental health was in such a fragile condition they looked at other solutions. They believed depression would mean her body wouldn't cope with three weeks of radiotherapy.

A new high-dose radiotherapy of five days was devised, with success.

Chris said the cancer battle also impacted on her mum, who had battled the disease twice, her husband Paul, her sons Nathan and Corey, and her two sisters – and extended family.

"I was probably worried about (them) more than anything," she said.

"It is huge, it is massive... those first three weeks for the first lot, going from when I found out I had it, to three weeks later when I had my surgery, I was a mess.

"I never ever had that experience in my life before, I had never been down that far, I was just in a real, real bad place and they had to prop me up a bit.

"Paul has been absolutely amazing both times, and my kids, the first time, Corey, my younger one, he was probably about 14/15, and just finishing school, but both times he was with me when I got my phone calls that weren't the greatest, so he did struggle.

"Nathan, he was a bit older, but he just went 'yep, you will be right, you will be right' and it wasn't until probably five or six months later when we sat down and talked about it, that he said 'mum, I didn't realise it was so serious'."

Likewise the effect on friends was also different.

"I had a couple of friends that were really supportive, but one friend I lost for six months, as she just didn't know how to cope with it," Chris said.

"It was really, really hard for me to accept that, but she came to me afterwards and said 'I just didn't know what to say, I didn't know what to do, I didn't know how to help you, and the only thing I could do, was go away from it'."

Like many people with cancer, Chris shied away from telling her story.

"My mum was here with me for the first three weeks in 2009, and she kept saying 'I have people who have had it, they can come around', and I said, 'Mum, please no, I don't want to talk to anybody about it, I just want to deal with my own battle,' she said.

"I was really unwell about 10 months later and that is when I faced it and went 'right, I

Strathalbyn's Chris Watson has shared her story of breast cancer in the hope it will help others. Photo: Deirdre Graham have to get some help with this now, and talk to somebody'.

"(The second time) I thought, 'No, I have to get help', so straight away I was in to the psychologist.

"Now I do tell my story a lot, it is really, really important, (although) I do know there are people out there that don't want to do that, but it is really important for me to talk to people."

The support from the Strathalbyn Pink Plus group has been invaluable.

"It has been absolutely amazing, my first time (the group)... or the McGrath nurses weren't around," Chris said.

"(The second time) I knew so many people who had gone through so much more, in the way of mastectomies and chemo and everything else, so I knew it could be OK, and I could be OK.

"Those early tests are very, very important, so as early as you possibly can, get those mammograms done, it is just about getting onto it as early as you possibly can.

"Don't be afraid to get support, don't be afraid to talk to people, and if you are not sure about something ask questions, try to get that support as much as you possibly can."

Chris continues to have mammograms every 12 months, and sometimes more frequently if she has issues, and has also embraced the need to have constant tests for other cancers and illnesses.

SA IS BUILDING

SAFER DRIVES HOME

REGIONAL ROAD UPGRADES

We're upgrading key regional routes across South Australia to make every journey safer, smoother and more reliable. By installing new safety barriers, improved warning signs, tactile line markings, new overtaking lines and undertaking road resurfacing, we'll prevent crashes and save lives. It's all part of building a safer and more connected future for regional South Australia.

Government of South Australia

SEE WHAT IT MEANS FOR YOU

CFS incidents in region

A fire sparked by a lightning strike was among several recent incidents in the region responded to by Country Fire Service (CFS) volunteers.

A slow-moving grass fire was ignited by a lightning strike on October 16 on Sorrells Road at Finniss.

The fire was attended by seven crews and had no threat to property.

Meanwhile, a tree fire in a Mount Compass paddock was quickly extinguished by one crew on October 17.

Another tree fire was at Flaxley on October 16, quickly extinguished by two crews.

Over at Mount Barker, a small grass fire was quickly extinguished by two crews on October 18.

E-bike thefts in Goolwa

SA Police has received several reports of e-bikes being stolen in and around the Goolwa and Victor Harbor areas in recent weeks and are calling on owners to take extra precautions.

These high-value items are increasingly being targeted by opportunistic thieves, often when left unsecured or visible in public spaces.

To help prevent further incidents, police are reminding all e-bike owners to take extra precautions.

E-Bikes should be stored out of sight and securely locked when not in use, even when kept at home.

Using high-quality locks and securing bikes to immovable objects can significantly reduce the risk of theft.

Owners are also encouraged to record serial numbers and consider GPS tracking options.

Garage fire

A garage fire at Wistow last week caused an estimated $60,000 worth of damage.

Country Fire Service (CFS) crews were called to the incident on October 17 at around 12.30pm.

Twenty CFS firefighters on five trucks attended the fire in a joint response with the MFS.

Thanks to the prompt response from firefighters, the spread was contained to the garage and did not spread to the house.

The fire caused an estimated $60,000 in damages and fire investigators were called to the scene.

Car rollover at Ashbourne

A driver and his passenger escaped injuries when their car rolled over last week,

Emergency services attended a single car rollover on Bull Creek Road at Ashbourne on the evening of October 17.

Fortunately, neither the driver, a 19-year-old man nor his 15-year-old female passenger, both from Bull Creek, were injured in the crash.

The young driver was issued with an expiation notice for failing to maintain control of his vehicle.

The vehicle was towed from the scene.

Volunteers rescued a horse at Milang after the animal broke away from their owner on the weekend.

The horse escaped along the foreshore on Sunday and was unable to be located.

The incident was responded to by volunteers from around the district: the Milang and Clayton Bay Country Fire Service (CFS), and the Strathalbyn, Mount Barker and Yankalilla State Emergency Service (SES).

Using an infrared drone from the SES, the horse was found a few hundred metres into the reeds on the eastern side of the Milang Regatta Club.

Volunteers attempted to walk the animal out, but to no avail.

So, a mat was set up, and the animal was dragged manually about 200m through the reeds to the point where it could be winched up the hill and onto the road onto a float and taken to the vet for treatment verge.

The horse was then able to stand up, was put of some minor abrasions.

‘Burns in water’: Warning about batteries

By Deirdre Graham

The Strathalbyn CFS brigade has issued a warning about Lithium-ion batteries with the number of fires related to them expected to rise.

Speaking after a training session on the issue, Strathalbyn CFS captain Andrew Wardle said the batteries are able to burn underwater.

“The biggest difficulty is that they are relatively sealed and we can’t always get water to the source of the fire, which is inside the sealed battery,” Mr Wardle said.

“That can be in a battery pack, it can be in the frame of a scooter or e-bike.

“And because they burn at such a high temperature, create their own oxygen, water doesn’t always work, and neither does anything else.

“They can burn under water, and there is a lot of misinformation out there – there have been instances where people have actually submerged a car and it continued to burn underwater.

“So, you can imagine the difficulties trying to hit it with water from a hose.”

Mr Wardle said the most important thing if confronted by a battery fire was to stay out of the smoke which is particularly toxic.

“We may have to let the battery fire run its course, and focus on stopping it from spreading further,” he said.

“The other issue is we can throw as much water as we like at it, but we then have contaminated run off water.”

The contaminants are from the different compositions of batteries, which can also include cobalt and nitrate, and firefighters sometimes can only detect that after the fire.

The NSW fire services currently attend one lithium-ion battery fire per day – encapsulating car, house, scooters, e-bikes and handheld devices.

Mr Wardle said the local brigade has already attended a number of battery fires, and it’s just a matter of time before another.

“The first one we had was a few years ago now, and that was a lithium battery in a rubbish truck which caught fire, but thankfully it was only a small battery and it burnt itself out,” Mr Wardle said.

“We escorted the rubbish truck back to the dump, and asked the driver to offload in a safe area. We then went over it with a thermal imaging camera to put out the hot spots.”

In recent months, similar fires have also occurred at Willyaroo and Woodchester.

Mr Wardle had some advice for when a battery fire occurs.

“If it is a handheld device, scooter or e-bike, get it outside safely (if possible),” he said.

“I stress safely, because it is generating smoke that is quite toxic, with very nasty chemicals in the smoke.

“Unfortunately, by the time people notice the smoke it is possibly already too late and the last thing you want to do is get close to that fire.

“The best thing to do is get out and call 000.”

Mr Wardle said there were some ways to lessen the risk of battery fires.

“The take home message we got from the state expert was use the correct charger for the device,” Mr Wardle said.

“If possible, charge scooters and e-bikes outside, do not leave them on charge indoors overnight.

“Mobile phones... where possible, try and use the original charger and discard the chargers and cords if they become damaged.”

He encouraged readers to visit the CFS website for more information on lithium battery safety.

Police chase through Mount Barker

Two people were arrested last week following a police pursuit through Mount Barker after a fleeing ute rammed a patrol car.

This incident began in the early morning of October 16, when SA Police was called to a Mount Barker service station with reports of intoxicated people.

Upon arrival, police observed a man and woman standing near a black Holden vehicle.

When the pair saw the police, they got into the vehicle and left quickly down Adelaide Road.

Police lights and sirens failed to stop the Holden which took off at speed.

The vehicle was pursued for a short distance through Mount Barker, before it came to a stop on Flaxley Road.

It then reversed at speed, crashing into the front of the patrol causing significant damage.

Luckily, the police officer wasn’t physically injured, however, the police car sustained extensive damage and was towed.

Another patrol arrived and attempted to stop the vehicle, however had to avoid a collision when the Holden drove at them.

Police made no other attempts to stop the vehicle for safety reasons, and the vehicle was last seen travelling east on Alexandrina Road from Flaxley Road.

Numerous patrols attended Mount Barker from neighbouring districts and regions to assist, and around 3.30am, the black Holden was found dumped in the showgrounds.

Dog operations attended and began tracking from the vehicle, however, was unable to locate anyone.

After ongoing enquiries, police located the two suspects at about 8am on Murray Street.

A 39-year-old man from Black Forest was arrested and charged with a series of offences including dangerous driving to cause police pursuit, endangering life, driving at night without effective lights and driving whilst disqualified.

A car reversed into an SA Police patrol vehicle at Mount Barker last week.

He was taken to hospital to receive treatment.

A 49-year-old woman from Glandore was arrested and charged with failing to stop and assist or present to police after an accident, failing to answer questions to identify driver or owner of vehicle and dangerous driving to cause police pursuit.

She has been bailed to appear in the Mount Barker Magistrates Court on November 27.

Anyone who may have CCTV or dash cam that has not yet spoken with police is asked to contact Crime Stoppers on 1800 333 000

Bron is fighting for Finniss' seat

Community advocate and former Alexandrina councillor, Bronwyn 'Bron' Lewis, has announced her candidacy for the seat of Finniss ahead of the 2026 State Election in March.

Bron has a diverse professional background working in health care and business development, having trained as a nurse and taught in a Master's of Hospital Management.

She also worked as a lecturer in business and entrepreneurship for over 20 years.

She has had experience working as a CEO and senior manager.

Bron has represented Australia at three Global Forums in the areas of Aged Care, literacy and the need for face-to-face teaching in adult education.

She was a ministerial appointment on a major health network in Victoria, which oversaw an extension to services and infrastructure to a regional community.

Bron believes that the seat of Finniss has been taken for granted by the major parties and has not seen financial support and attention from the government.

She thinks that this is something she will be able to reverse with her skills, experience and energy.

Through local contacts and consultations, Bron has created a list of projects available on her website.

These projects include affordable housing and a palliative care unit for the Fleurieu using models from interstate.

"During my time on council, I ran 61 listening posts," she said.

"I will maintain this successful strategy throughout and beyond the campaign, and interested people can make an appointment

Event back on the road

By Tara Nash

Motorbike riders are polishing off their pride-and-joys in preparation for one of their favourite events in the Adelaide Hills.

The Lions Bike Show is returning to Macclesfield again, expecting a crowd of about 1500 to view a display of motorbikes while enjoying food, live music and stalls.

Some of the bikes on display will be Honda Goldwings which is celebrating its 50th anniversary, Easy Riders, Harley Davidsons, as well as many European, old classics and vintage bikes.

Held at the Macclesfield oval November 2, the day is the major fundraiser for Battunga Lions Club.

Williams Syndrome Association of SA also helps out on the day and receives a generous donation, while other local community groups and sporting organisations also get involved.

Member David Ledger described the event as a "fantastic" day.

"They're all bike enthusiasts and rev heads at heart, and like the sound of motorbikes," he described of the visitors.

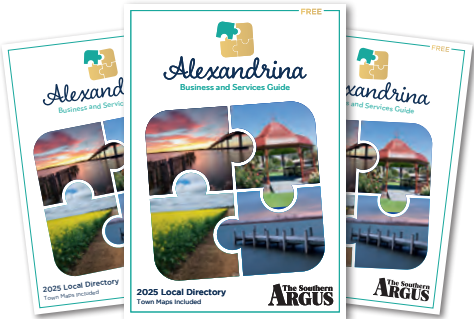

"There's lots of excitement around the day.

"Part of (the fun) is the ride through the lovely Adelaide Hills – it's a pretty nice area for bike riding."

Be prepared as fire danger season approaches

By Amarli Wight

The Country Fire Service (CFS) has announced the dates for the fire danger season for the Murraylands region, but the dates for the Mount Lofty Ranges is still yet to be announced.

The boundary line between the two regions cuts through the local area, with Mount Barker, Strathalbyn and Goolwa in the Mount Lofty Ranges, and Milang, Langhorne Creek and Clayton Bay in the Murraylands.

The start of the season for the Murraylands is from November 1, spanning to April 30, 2026.

Strathalbyn CFS Group Officer Greg Pfeiffer said the dates are determined by considering soil dryness and the conditions the state has faced.

"A lot of the state is still in drought, and down here we're down on (typical rainfall)," Mr Pfeiffer said.

He classified the region as being in a green drought, meaning there has been enough rain for pastures and land to appear healthy and green, but the deeper layers of soil are still dry.

Mr Pfeiffer said that the CFS has already responded to grass fires in recent few weeks.

"(They've) not been burning at any speed but (are still) burning, which is not unusual, but it's a bit scary (because) it's a little bit early," Pfeiffer said.

To be prepared for the upcoming season, Mr Pfeiffer said people should start looking at the fire breaks on their properties and fence lines, and start clearing and cutting the grass near their houses.

"(The) problem is we haven't really had much of a fire season — except for last year," Mr Pfeiffer said.

"So, people get complacent, and the last thing I want to see is it sneak up on people (who are not) prepared because it can be devastating."

People need to stay vigilant on fire-prone days to keep themselves and those around them safe.

On high-risk days, Mr Pfeiffer said it may be best to curve your operations and what you are doing.

"You're obviously not going to get out with an angle grinder on a bad day... or any day during fire danger season," Mr Pfeiffer said.

"That's the quickest way to start a fire.

"Fires have been started over electric drills, (they) get jammed when they have been drilling into steel, and it's dropped a hot piece of metal, and away it goes."

He notes it's important to realise it doesn't have to be a particularly warm day to pose a risk, because the wind also plays a major role.

"If it's blowing, it can be gone before you even realise it's actually started," Mr Pfeiffer said.

Given the unpredictable nature of fire and weather, Mr Pfeiffer is unsure how this season will play out.

"This year's shaping up with (us) low on rainfall, it's starting to dry off pretty quickly, and we've still got heavy fuel loads in scrub... around the place," Mr Pfeiffer said.

"We just have to wait and see, but we only have a problem if we have a fire."

While the dates for the Mount Lofty Ranges are yet to be announced, Mr Pfeiffer predicts they will follow the trends of the other regions, likely pushing forward.

Locals warned not to get complacent during fire danger season.

Families set to make a splash at race

By Tara Nash

One of Strathalbyn's favourite events of the year, The Great Duck Race, will open up a new category specially for families for the first time.

The Great Duck Race brings together thousands of locals and visitors to Soldiers Memorial Gardens to watch figurine ducks race down the Angas River, and is the local Rotary's major annual fundraiser.

Returning next month, families will now get the opportunity to go head-to-head with others in a special heat where they get to decorate and race a duck for prizes.

The idea is to bring together and further the participation of parents and kids in what's already a family-friendly day.

President John Agnew suggested families follow a theme, or play on the word 'duck', saying judges will be most impressed with creativity, novelty and something that will "blow them out of the water", while others build their duck for speed.

"There are lots of creative people in Strath, I'm sure there are many... things that people can come up with," he said.

"We reckon it could make the event more special for people."

The special heat will be limited to the first

50 families who sign up before November 14.

It's similar to the returning heat for businesses who can decorate and race ducks, with many using the opportunity to showcase their local business and earn "bragging rights" if they win.

Six duck races will be held on the day, with $2000 in total prize money up for grabs.

In the major heat, The Great Duck Race, community members can purchase one of the 3000 tickets available, with each ticket equating to a duck that will be raced down the river.

The Great Duck Race will be held on November 30, from 10.30am to 2.30pm.

Strathalbyn Tyre Service goes pink for breast cancer

By Deirdre Graham

Strathalbyn Tyre Service recently went pink to fundraise for breast cancer research, doubling the amount raised at their inaugural event last year.

The fundraising tally has exceeded $3500.

“We were impressed last year to raise $1400 so we set ourselves a target of $1500, and to achieve the result we did was amazing,” owner Katherine Harrip stated.

“We used more media platforms this year so was able to reach a wider audience and a new banner was an eye catcher and got plenty of people taking notice.

“We had a local resident donate a Wild Turkey Poker set to be used in a silent auction which went for $500.

“We supplied a QR code for those people wanting to donate online or how could not make it on the day.”

The pink-themed event had home-made pink treats, pink Dunlop caps and pink stubby holders with a sausage sizzle.

“I am sure that you have all seen, heard or witnessed breast cancer first hand and the effect it has on individuals and their families,” Mrs Harrip said.

“It is in our community as we speak and with Peter having lost his older sister to breast cancer it is an important cause like many others to get behind, and to find a cure.

“We can’t thank the local businesses and wider community for supporting us on the day.

“We are hoping this event gets bigger and bigger each year, and with the suggestions on how to grow the day from the community I sure it will.”

Letters to the Editor

Unfilled ambulance shifts

Dear Editor,
I share the worry felt by both the Ambulance Employees Association and their members at the number of unfilled ambulance shifts across our state with 136 vacant over one week. The reality that some regional communities may often be left without ambulance coverage is deeply troubling. Country patients deserve the same access to timely emergency care as those living in metropolitan areas. I want to acknowledge the tireless efforts of our volunteer ambulance officers and career paramedics who continually go above and beyond to keep our communities safe. Their dedication is remarkable, but it should not come at the cost of exhaustion or burnout.

It is time that more respect is shown to our volunteer ambulance officers. They are qualified, experienced, dedicated ...and local. They know the roads and they know each other which matters in a crisis. Premier Malinauskas must act with more urgency to address rural workforce shortages in health to guarantee that every South Australian, no matter their postcode, can expect the same standard of healthcare when they need it most.

Fire Danger Season coming in hot

Fire Danger Season is fast approaching, with the Murray Lands set to begin on November 1 and stretching until April 30, 2026. As highlighted on page 11 of this week's Argus, Strathalbyn CFS Group Officer Greg Pfeiffer urged local residents to start getting prepared now for the season. With the green drought the region has been facing, it's gearing up to be full of unpredictability. The CFS has said that the last couple of fire seasons, excluding last year's, have been relatively tame. With this, people become complacent and forget that there's work to be done to keep themselves and their families safe. People need to start thinking about the jobs they've been putting off so far, taking that bit of extra effort to make sure this Fire Danger Season won't impact them. With the odd fire already popping up just a couple of months into spring, the time is now to get prepared. Start looking at your fire breaks, fence lines, clearing and cutting back the grass around houses. Burn-offs need to be done before November 1, or you will need to obtain a Schedule 9 Permit from the council to be allowed to do one during Fire Danger Season. It is important to stay vigilant and look out for each other, especially on those warm and windy days that are guaranteed to be just around the corner. If something is to happen, just know that our CFS volunteers are well-equipped and trained to help you out at any given moment. Fingers crossed that this Fire Danger Season is tame and everyone stays safe and out of harm's way.

REMINDER: Recreation of historic photo

Strathalbyn Eastern Fleurieu School (EFS) is recreating a historic photo taken a century ago, to capture the growth of the school community. The school is inviting current staff, students, families, and community members – especially those who may be related to people in the original 1925 photo – to take part in the recreation. The photo aims to highlight the connection between the school's past and present, while celebrating the people who have shaped the Strathalbyn community over the past century. The photo will be captured at the EFS 7-12 campus today, October 23 at 9.45am. For further information, phone: 8536 2455.

By Deirdre Graham

Gilbert's Motor Museum was yet another pitstop for a touring motor group last Wednesday, when the National Veteran Vehicle Rally stopped by on a leg of its five-day tour of South Australia.

Rally Director Hamish McDonald said 106 veteran cars and 200 people took part in the rally.

"A veteran car is any vehicle built prior to January 1, 1919, and there are some really unique cars with us this week from all across Australia," Mr McDonald said.

"All the different states and territories are represented, and we rotate around each state every year, so this is the first time in seven years that it has come back to SA, so we are very privileged to host it."

On the travelogue has been Murray Bridge, Mannum and Mypolonga, Karoonda, Strathalbyn, Milang, Finniss and Clayton Bay, and Oakbank Racecourse.

Mr McDonald said a number of rare cars were making the journey.

"There is one called a Brush," he said.

"That is a single cylinder car, it is made out of wood – wooden wheels, wooden chassis, wooden axles, and they used to say they 'wooden' go, but they did, and went really, really well."

"It was one of the first cars to cross Australia from Perth to Sydney in 1912."

"That one has actually gone back to the UK, but there are quite a few Brushes here in Australia, although this is the only Brush here today on this event."

"The oldest car, off the top of my head, potentially could be a Cadillac, which is very early, and there is a Rover here which is 1907, and quite a lot of younger cars from about 1913."

Mr McDonald said members were "relishing" the opportunity to see the different regions of South Australia and meeting the communities they visited.

"We had a fantastic time in Karoonda, and the roads have been really fantastic," he said.

"They are nice long roads which drivers like, with plenty of pull off side kerbs that they can get off the road if they need to.

"They have really appreciated the level of organisation that has gone into it, and the variety of places that we have been able to visit, so Gilbert's was a really great spot for them because they are so interested in mechanical things, and to see the selection of vehicles has been a really good experience."

On Friday night the Governor of South Australia Frances Adamson and her partner Rod Bunten were to join members for a Vice Regal dinner.

"Mr Bunten is our patron and he joined us on Monday and rode in some of the cars, and he thoroughly enjoyed it, and was very pleased and proud to be our patron," Mr McDonald said.

"It is a movement, as people are getting older and we really need interest from younger generations. Otherwise... a parade of motoring history will disappear and you will only see it in a museum like Gilbert's, which is static."

"What people don't see (in a museum) is the smell and the sound, and this brings such a richness to why we do what we do, and share it with people in the community."

Mr McDonald said the 106 cars had held up well over the rally.

"Veteran car owners are resilient people," he said.

"You have to be patient but you also have to be prepared to get a little bit of grease and grime on you, and you can see on my fingers I still have some from when I was tinkering with my car."

"We get out and we keep them going, but we also have a great fellowship and camaraderie and we help each other."

"Cars will break down inevitably, because you have to when you are 100-years-old, and then they will trailer them back to where ever they are staying, caravan park or whatever, and they will all work on it, and nine times out of 10 you will see them there the next morning ready to start."

"Although sometimes they fail to proceed, and you have to live with that, that is the risk of keeping an antiquated vehicle on the road."

For the record, Gilbert's was given the thumbs up from the visitors.

Transport & Infrastructure Forum

Thank you to John Olson (HDS Australia) and Hon. Ben Hood MLC for joining me to share expertise, and to the many locals who attended the recent forum.

The Southern Fleurieu is growing fast. Over the next 25 years our region may see tens of thousands of new homes—particularly around Victor Harbor and Goolwa—so we need to plan & build now.

Our most urgent road project is the Middleton Bypass as the first step of a South Coast Freight Corridor. This will connect Airport Road to Lines Road and then on to Waitpinga Road, taking heavy freight out of Victor Harbor's main street—especially important in peak holiday periods.

My focus is securing a firm, commitment from Government for the route and first-stage works, so delivery can get underway.

I'm also backing better public transport. A Liberal plan for 50c regional fares and an extension of on-demand services to Goolwa and Hindmarsh Island will ease cost-of-living pressures and give locals real options—because choosing to live regionally shouldn't mean fewer services.

I'll keep pushing for practical, staged projects—like the Middleton Bypass—that improve safety, support local jobs, and help our freight move efficiently while protecting the amenity of our towns. If you've got feedback or local knowledge to add, I want to hear it. Next I will be hosting a forum on Aging Well (see below)

One person's trash is another's treasure

By Amarli Wight

The Rotary Club of Strathalbyn recently held its fourth Auto Swap Meet bright and early, with stall holders filling the grounds from 5.30am and bargain hunters at 6.30am.

President, John Agnew, said the day went "quite well".

"The weather was good, people were pretty good to get in there (and) get organised," Mr Agnew said.

"We had a good crowd without having a bumper crowd, and again it's amazing that people are there early on a Sunday morning."

Mr Agnew said they had 120 stallholders in attendance, selling all types of car parts, tools, and a little bit of everything in between.

The Auto Swap Meet was a way to raise money for the Rotary Club.

Mr Agnew estimated they would have raised $4000 to $5000, and the money raised will go towards a range of different projects.

"As we raise funds ... there will be worthy causes that come up," Mr Agnew said.

"We've got a round of community grants available at the moment, we will be funding some of those from (the) money."

He received positive feedback from the community and those in attendance.

"There was one person who said this was the best swap meet they've been to in four or five years," Mr Agnew said.

"Generally, the people I saw coming out all had smiling faces and ... lots of people coming out with various treasures underneath their arms."

Volunteer Kym Holbrook, Strathalbyn Rotary president John Agnew, and Rotarian Vin Leeton, were hard at work at the gates to the club's Auto Swap Meet.

Mr Agnew made notes that although it is a great fundraiser for the Rotary Club, it also brings a lot of people into the community.

"It's one of those days that brings a lot of people into our community, and it's a good thing for the town and other businesses as a whole," Mr Agnew said.

Mr Agnew acknowledged the contributions of Rotarians for their efforts.

Come and try session for new farmer initiative

A new community initiative to help farmers improve their physical and mental health will soon have a come and try session near Strathalbyn.

Fat Farmers Fitness Group will bring together people to do some exercise to help improve their physical and mental health and general wellbeing.

Despite the name, participants don't have to be fat, or even a farmer, to join in.

This is an initiative that started at Maitland on the Yorke Peninsula more than 10 years ago and has now spread to more than 30 locations in South Australia and interstate.

Fat Farmers Fitness Group will start at Fleurieu Fitness and Health, at Willyaroo, from next week.

Living with dementia

When acclaimed builder and designer Warren Henderson drove up to the party in his glittering gold Mercedes convertible, he jumped out looking like John Travolta (it was 1983) and threw a young party guest a playful smile.

Deidre immediately knew she had just met someone who would be a huge presence in her life.

“I felt a bit like a rabbit in headlights to be honest,” she said.

“Warren was a larger-than-life personality with such a joyful disposition.

“People were drawn to him.

“He was adored by everyone.”

As a single mother of three children, Deidre’s life was frugal, exhausting and often lonely. She wasn’t even going to attend the party that night, but a couple she was friends with pushed her to come out with them and have some fun.

“As soon as my friends left us alone, Warren literally picked me up and twirled me around,” she said.

“When he put me down our eyes met and that was it for both of us.”

Romance blossomed and they soon became inseparable.

Warren married Deidre and brought up her three children as his own.

An Australian National Sailing Champion, Warren was an expert sailor and so he, Deidre and the children enjoyed an idyllic life with much of their time spent on the water in his large yacht.

“It was like a caravan on water,” Deidre recalled.

“The children loved it. We loved it.

“It was an amazing life.”

In 2020, the couple retired to Victor Harbor, ready to settle into the next phase of their lives.

Deidre had noticed Warren was struggling with his memory, but she put it down to his massive workload running a successful building company.

“I thought his memory lapses were due to work stress and a busy social life and hoped it would improve once he gave up work,” she said.

Instead, Warren’s memory rapidly declined, and Deidre also noticed behavioural changes in her once cheerful partner.

Within six months of their retirement to the Fleurieu region, Warren was diagnosed with dementia.

Four years later, Deidre’s own major health issues forced her to make the heart wrenching decision to place Warren into full-time care.

“I was devastated,” she said.

“It was the most heartbreaking experience to be separated from my soul mate.”

Deidre credits staff at Dementia Australia and Carers SA among those who supported her through that difficult time.

“I received fantastic support and feel blessed to have had local medical teams, helplines and fellow carers to show me a way forward,” she said.

Despite now living separately, Deidre still spends most days with Warren.

They walk their little dog, Abby, and they are active members of Demetia Australia’s Memory Lane Cafe group.

The Victor Harbor RSL is the home base of the group designed for people living with a dementia diagnosis and their carer partners to attend together and enjoy live entertainment and morning tea in a safe and understanding environment.

Deidre is now a leading dementia advocate in the Fleurieu region and wants people to know there is hope; both for those diagnosed with dementia and for their partners.

“It is a scary road, but you can continue to live a full life after a diagnosis,” she said.

“It is about getting all the relevant information to make decisions around how to manage it.

“It is about asking for support and, most importantly, it is about knowing you are not alone.”

Member for Finnis David Basham MP said Deidre’s story is a powerful reminder of how important it is to talk about dementia in the community.

Warren and Deidre Henderson with their dog, Abby.

“A dementia diagnosis is a daunting health issue to navigate,” he said.

“I am glad we have strong support structures in place and people like Deidre in the Finnis community advocating for more awareness because there is still so much to be done in this space.”

Deidre Henderson is a guest speaker at the Connecting Community Forum by Member for Finnis, David Basham MP and in conjunction with Federal Member for Mayo, Rebekha Sharkie MP and Dementia Australia.

It is held on Friday, October 31, from 1.30pm to 3.30pm at Encounter Bay Football Club. RSVP: www.trybooking.com/DGDLO

Navigating first home ownership

Buying your first home is an exciting time! Here's an update on what you need to know.

State-based benefits

If you are purchasing your first home there are state-based supports available:

1. First Home Owner Grant

Buyers who are purchasing or building a new residential property and who meet the eligibility criteria may be entitled to a one-off payment of up to $15,000.

Key requirements include:

- being at least 18,
- being an Australian citizen, permanent resident or appropriately qualified NZ citizen, and
- making the home your principal place of residence for a continuous period (generally at least six months) within 12 months of settlement or completion.

2. Stamp duty relief for eligible first home buyers

You may qualify for relief from stamp duty on land when purchasing a new home, off-the-plan apartment, or vacant land to build.

The national 5 per cent Deposit Scheme

There is a Federal Government scheme to help first-home buyers enter the market with a lower deposit.

The Federal Government 5 per cent Deposit Scheme helps you buy your first home with a minimum 5 per cent deposit, without having to pay Lenders Mortgage Insurance. Single parents can buy with a 2 per cent deposit.

Key features:

- Minimum deposit of 5 per cent for first home buyers.
- No income caps, no waiting lists, and no LMI if you qualify.
- Property must be owner-occupier (not investment).
- Priced at or below the location's price cap

Strathalbyn Conveyancing helps first home buyers.

- Borrowers must be at least 18 years old, Australian citizens or permanent residents.
- Not have owned residential property in Australia in the last 10 years.

If you're considering buying your first home in Strathalbyn, or anywhere in South Australia, give Strathalbyn Conveyancing a call. The team can take you through your options and ensure that you have the best possible outcome.

They will provide clear, plain english explanations so you can focus on what matters: finding your home and moving in.

Strathalbyn Conveyancing can talk buyers through their options.

AGEING PARENTS: Help them make the most of their twilight years

These days, people live longer and fuller lives than ever before. Our parents and relatives hopefully have long and fulfilling post-retirement years to look forward to.

Everyone’s circumstances are different and your loved ones will have their own ideas about the best way to manage the transition. It may be the case that one family member can stay in their home while another requires more support.

Or it may be possible for an older relative to come and live with you or another family member.

This life transition can become even more complex if people require high level aged care (or home care) after a sudden illness. When families haven’t anticipated the need for extra care, it leaves them with little time to explore in-home or aged care options, and how best to fund them.

Looking at your options

Navigating your way through the many emotional and financial issues can be challenging. But it’s much easier for everyone to be on the same page once you understand the options.

Initiating this vital conversation with your elderly parents or relatives, while they are still able to make sound decisions about their future care, will enable them to have meaningful input on what happens next.

These conversations can be difficult to instigate and need to be handled sensitively. Often, they represent a profound shift in the dynamic of a relationship with a parent or older relative. But once you’ve talked and agreed upon a way forward, you’ll all feel much better about dealing with whatever the future may bring.

Let us guide you

Speaking with Wealth Logic, whether by yourself or with your relative(s), can help you review the financial options and put plans in place.

like super, assets, debts, age pension entitlements, and more.

For example, if residential aged care is required, financial decisions such as how a resident pays an accommodation payment can have a significant impact on Centrelink entitlement, cashflow and tax.

Ray White Strathalbyn is proud to present this inviting four-bedroom, two-bathroom double brick family home, nestled on a generous 1,806sqm allotment facing the Strathalbyn Polo Grounds.

Surrounded by established gardens, mature trees, and an array of fruit trees, this residence strikes a perfect balance between space, privacy and character, all within minutes of township conveniences.

Step inside and enjoy the warmth of well-proportioned living areas, where comfort is prioritised with a ducted air system offering climate control throughout.

A generous formal lounge flows into an open plan kitchen, meals and family zone, suited to both day to day living and entertaining.

The kitchen is well equipped with quality appliances, ample bench space and storage, making meal preparation a pleasure.

Accommodation includes four comfortable bedrooms.

The main bedroom is complemented by a private ensuite, while the remaining three bedrooms share the well-appointed main bathroom.

A functional laundry adds further convenience to the home's layout.

Step outdoors and you'll find the lifestyle appeal continues.

The expansive 1,806sqm block is beautifully landscaped, providing tranquil garden scene, established trees, lawn areas and room for recreation or further enhancement.

A carport offers secure parking for two vehicles, and the grounds are fully fenced for privacy and safety.

Located in the heart of Strathalbyn, you're minutes from shops, cafés, schools, parklands, public transport and other amenities.

This home combines generous land, comfortable interior living and a desirable address.

An opportunity not to be missed.

Boaters set sail on new season

By Tara Nash

About 100 people celebrated the start of the new boating season on the weekend at the Goolwa Aquatic Club's open day. The program was launched for the clubs that operate out of the Barrage Road building: the Goolwa Sailing Club, Goolwa Vintage Boat Club, and Goolwa Aquatic Club Speedboat Community, and Coorong Dragons. The day included a speedboat display, an official opening by Alexandrina Mayor Keith Parkes, a sail past, and races.

"It was really good – it was great to see members there from across all of our aquatic activities, including our social members," acting commodore, Tanya Mitchell, said. "Goolwa Aquatic Club is very unique in that we have such a diverse range of aquatic activities – to have two sailing clubs, a speedboat club, a dragon boat club, and social members for a cruising club, all under one roof and in one location. "And, of course, it's such a beautiful location on the lower Murray." MORE PHOTOS AND SAILING REPORT, PAGES 38-40

Better results this week for Langhorne Creek bowlers

Thursday saw the start of the Ladies Pennant competition and the gals from Langhorne Creek had their first game in Division 2 for many years, playing a team from Port Elliot.

A very windy, dirty day challenged all bowlers and many shots landed in the ditch or out of bounds.

The Creek girls started slowly – nerves, I think – but then found a bit of rhythm and reduced the lead halfway through the game.

Di Golding's rink were even on the 13th end and they slowly drew ahead to win by seven shots.

Skipper Judy Zanker was having her first game using her bowling arm and she struggled initially to get the thing working!

However, she and her rink managed to keep in touch, losing by 16 shots.

Jo Cullen and her girls were having a good game and won convincingly by 17 shots, so an overall win by the team, and were they excited!

Saturday both Division 2 and Division 4 were at home and selectors really struggled to get numbers to fill the teams.

Many thanks to John Burd and Vince Dunlop, two Night Owls who filled in on the day.

Hopefully this Saturday will see players returning from sickness, work and family commitments to make the selectors' job easier.

Division 2 were hosting Aldinga Bay and were hoping for a win this week.

Ben Footner's boys were a bit slow off the mark, being down by six shots on end 10.

They slowly caught up and a very handy six on end 18 gave them a comfortable lead and they ended up winning by eight shots.

Justin Cleggett once again had a mixed combination and struggled to get going, being well down on the 14th end.

They then got going and picked up some shots to go down by 10 shots, a good effort from them.

Wayne Duncan's rink once again had a good day, with Wayne putting in some great skipper's bowls to end up in front by four shots, so a close two-shot win for the Division 2s.

Division 4 teams were shuffled around to get three teams on the day.

Di Golding and her fellow players had a great game to score a 12-shot win.

Judy Zanker was in charge of another one of the rinks and her team were struggling for half of the game.

However, they got going and eventually went down by four shots, a good effort.

Think Frosty and his boys had a day they would rather forget.

Night Owls last Thursday night was quite challenging – thunder and lightning, power on, power off.

Luckily the cooks were using gas appliances, so everyone got fed.

Power was back on when needed and the evening cleared and the night ended up being quite successful.

Milang Bowls

Our pennant season began with both divisions playing at Milang on October 11.

Division 3 scored three points against Myponga, with Lee's rink winning by six shots and Glen's drawing 20 all.

Jacky's rink was down by 10. All teams have had interchanges from last season and may need a few games to adjust.

Division 5 scored 10 points against Strathalbyn.

Kym's group won by 20 to gain Rink of the Week, Heather's won by one shot and Kevin's lost by four shots.

On Thursday, the ladies began their season at Aldinga Bay in very warm, breezy conditions.

This did not affect the outcome for Milang as we had expected.

All rinks won to gain all 12 points.

Bev's rink started with a four on the first end, followed soon afterwards with three more and managed to lead throughout the game to win by six.

The other two rinks started slowly but had remarkable scores by the last end.

Lee's team won by 16 and Jacky's by 15.

A very pleasing start to our season.

On Saturday, Division 3 played at Victor Harbor and gained 10 points.

Jacky's rink lost, but Lee's won by 12 shots and Glen's by five.

He had bragging rights at home later, having played against his wife's team.

Division 5 played at Port Elliot against teams consisting of three players, enabling two players on each rink to use three bowls, which worked to their advantage on two rinks.

Milang won overall with eight points, thanks to Kym and his team of ladies scoring 29–4 (Rink of the Week).

Heather's team lost by 10 and Peter Miller, in his first match as skipper, went down by only three.

Friday, October 24 is Milang President's Fours Day, when we will host 14 teams of players and look forward to good weather and friendship.

A full report next week.

On Saturday, both divisions are playing at Milang again, so the ladies will be busy three days in a row.

Strathalbyn Cricket Club reports

It was a mixed day across the senior grades with the A Grade scoring a confidence-boosting win at home against Nairne, while the junior competitions also got underway.

Cricket Blast

The Term 4 Cricket Blast Program will commence on Tuesday, October 28.

The program will again be delivered as an after-school activity at the EFS R-6 campus.

More information is available at www.playcricket.com and search for Strathalbyn Cricket Club.

U10

The Under 10s opened the season with a lightning carnival at Woodside last Friday night.

After having the bye in the first timeslot, the lads were keen to get into it.

With all but one player from last season moving up to Under 12s, it was a new-look and inexperienced team, with five of the six players making their structured-cricket debut.

Clayton skippered the side and won the bat flip, choosing to bat first.

All batters did extremely well - Clayton and Brodie started positively, followed by Levi and Bryce, before Henry and Angus closed out the batting with a good partnership featuring plenty of maximums.

With the ball, the lads bowled tightly and conceded minimal extras - a fantastic effort for their first game.

Great start, boys!

We can still accommodate a few more players, so if you have a child keen to get involved, come out to training on Wednesday afternoons at the Strath Oval from 4.30pm.

U12

The Under 12s commenced the season on the road against a very good Langhorne Creek team last Friday evening.

Captain Connor Sherriff won the toss and elected to bowl.

Liam Bates got the first wicket, hitting the pegs early, but from there Langhorne Creek consolidated.

Wolf Kovac broke a string of retirements with a direct-hit run-out, and late wickets to Dayne Vanderzon and Wolf kept Langhorne Creek to a strong score of 101.

Our line and length overall were good, and we gave away few extras - a solid start to the year.

Batting second, the innings unfortunately never really gained momentum.

Early wickets put the side under pressure, and it was difficult to recover. Jarrod Ellis, in his first game for the club, retired along with Henry Turnbull and Liam Bates.

These lads were able to get a few shots away on their return to the crease; however, the team fell well short, finishing with 37.

Final scores: Langhorne Creek 4/101 def. Strathalbyn 10/37 by 64 runs.

U14

Bye.

U16

Last Saturday morning the new-look Strath/Cally Under 16 group headed to Langhorne Creek to get their 2025/26 campaign underway.

In addition to the Callington boys, the side also welcomed Jake Szust for his first game with the club.

After being asked to bat first, Oliver and Smith made a positive start, adding 38 for the first wicket.

The loss of successive wickets then had the score at 3/40 and in need of a partnership - and Matuhina and Wohlschlager delivered, with the fourth wicket not falling until 130 was on the board.

Matuhina reached the 60 retirement score in an outstanding knock, while Wohlschlager's 33 enabled a total of 9/166 to be posted.

After being well placed at 3/109 at drinks, the final score was possibly a few short of what the lads would have liked, but still a good total for the bowlers to defend next week.

Strath/Cally 9/166 (B. Matuhina 60 rtno, H. Wohlschlager 33, J. Smith 24) vs Langhorne Creek.

C Grade

The C Grade were asked to bat first at Milang last Saturday and were reasonably well placed at 2/38 early on.

However, the last eight wickets fell quickly, leaving the side bundled out for just 65.

Paul Gane (20) and Dave Vanderzon (14) were the best with the bat.

The Stallions tried hard with the ball and, despite the low total, pushed the game beyond the drinks break before the Razors passed the target in the 21st over for the loss of four wickets.

Braden Gane, backing up from Under 16s in the morning, grabbed a wicket.

A2 Grade

The return to the A2 competition didn't start well at Nairne last Saturday, with the locals piling on the runs. Nathan Wyatt, on club debut, was the only bowler to largely escape the carnage.

Chasing the huge total of 368, the Stallions batted out their 40 overs but finished well short at 5/139.

A few batters made starts - Hillam (31) and Bradley Wyatt (31) among them - but it was ultimately a comprehensive first-up loss.

A Grade

The clear highlight of the weekend was an unbeaten ton from Luke Cousins - the first A Grade century for the club since Mark Abbott in 2021/22.

Batting first, Cousins got the innings off to a good start with opening partner Medhurst, adding 53 for the first wicket before the latter was dismissed.

Teakle went cheaply, however Cousins then added 104 with skipper Harris, enabling a solid total of 4/243 to be posted.

With the ball, Brayden Gaiter soon had the Razors at 1/0, but a few handy partnerships followed to keep the visitors in the game.

Cutting returned for a second spell and removed the set Fiebiger, while skipper Harris picked up two scalps before Gaiter also returned to make a double breakthrough.

He finished with 3/26 from nine overs to guide the Stallions home by 31 runs.

Wistow have continued their strong return to A Grade, defeating Langhorne Creek by three wickets “up on the hill”.

Langhorne Creek skipper Adam Clements faced challenges at the selection table on Thursday night, introducing 14-year-old debutant Harry Burgess and 53-year-old Brett Phillips, as the Tigers batted first on a magnificent day for cricket.

It was clear the Tigers' top three would need to shoulder most of the work, with Brodie O'Dea starting well by hitting three boundaries as Dan Kropp was cautious early.

O'Dea fell to a mistimed pull shot to young gun Burgess with the score on 27.

The Tigers needed a big one from Clements, but when he chopped on a half-tracker from Kupke, they were in real trouble at 2/37 with their best two batsmen gone.

Kropp worked overtime to stay at the crease as the anchor.

He enjoyed the slow bowling of former Tiger Cade Tonkin, carting the Echidna for three glorious fours.

Tonkin only sent down one over.

Kropp lost youngster Toby Phillips along the way for a duck to Ryan Watt.

Troy Blackwell has been promoted this season, but he struggled with the willow and was out LBW for three.

Everything was on Kropp to post a competitive score. Levi Nutt hung around and helped push the total to 5/105 before falling for 13, and disaster struck when Kropp was run out for 63 by a brilliant throw from Jaxon Lynn.

Forty-four-year-old Chris Nutt stuck around for 20, but the Tigers could only muster 149, with Watt the chief destroyer taking 4/32 from five overs.

The Tigers were in the hunt early when Blackwell and Clements removed Jordan Grooby and Connor Burgess to have Wistow 2/1.

It should have been 3/1 when they had Fidler plumb shouldering arms to Clements, but umpire Bruinhout had a moment to forget, leaving the Tigers on edge.

Dropped catches haunted them as Fidler dug in with former Tigers junior Cooper Kupke, who also fought off Clements and Blackwell.

Fidler was LBW to Dan Evans at 3/44 and when Harrison Burgess fell to Kropp caught behind, the Tigers had a sniff.

Kupke had other ideas, grinding the Tigers into the Wistow turf with a patient half-century from 108 balls, alongside Tim Chynoweth's 48 from 58.

Levi Nutt took his first A Grade wicket to remove Kupke at 5/131.

With the bowling attack lacking sting after Clements and Blackwell, Wistow scraped through for their second win of the season, despite losing Lynn and Chynoweth on 149, before Tonkin hit the winning runs.

Langhorne Creek now face last year's premiers, Lobethal, but with rain forecast the Tigers may get the week off after an ordinary start against two teams likely to finish in the bottom half of the ladder come finals.

Wistow face winless Nairne, and the Echidnas are buoyant as they chase a third straight win.

Falcons open season with strong win

On Sunday, October 19 at Strathalbyn Oval, the Eastern Falcons played Reynella in the opening round of the 2025 ATCA Women's Second Grade competition.

The Falcons won the toss and elected to bat.

Opening for the Falcons were Emily Roberts, who made 42 not out, and Matilda Edmonds, who retired on 32.

Rebecca Hull then made a quick 17 off 15 balls before being caught, while Holly Paech finished unbeaten on 16.

The Falcons closed their innings at a competitive 2/129.

With the ball, both Edmonds and Paech claimed a wicket each.

Edmonds' all-round performance earned her Player of the Day honours.

Emily Mackenzie and Paige Roberts were also rewarded for their efforts, taking two wickets apiece.

Strong fielding - particularly from Sophie Caust and Paech - along with Hull's sharp wicketkeeping, delivered two run outs and a stumping.

Reynella was dismissed for 84, giving the Falcons their first win of the 2025/26 season.

The Falcons face rivals Hope Valley at Hope Valley Oval at 1pm on Sunday, October 26.

Tigers launch juniors

It was great to see many old and new faces at the Tigers junior season launch on Thursday night ahead of round one. Michelle Tonkin and her crew put on a fantastic sausage sizzle for 35 of our Blast, Under 10, 12, 14 and 16 players - and our volunteers - just as a thunderstorm rolled through town.

Junior coordinator Ben Warren was thrilled with the turnout and did a great job connecting new parents and players with our regulars while outlining the year for our Tiger Cubs. Ben praised our volunteers and coaches and acknowledged the general committee's efforts to make the club a better place with the best facilities possible. Current president Jarrod Cock thanked the parents and coaches for their time in making Murray Road a great place to play cricket. Jarrod explained he joined the club in 2012, when there were only three teams and a non-existent junior program, and reflected on the growth to seven teams and a Blast program. The Under 16s kicked off their season at home against Strathalbyn, while the Under 14s headed to the Summit against Mount Barker. The Under 12s played Strathalbyn at home, and the Under 10s were at Woodside for the annual carnival-style set-up on Friday night.

U14

Strathalbyn vs Pirates/Macclesfield

Strathalbyn batters were patient in the box swinging at good pitches. They were aggressive on the bases and scored 6 runs. On the back of solid pitching from Imogen Baker, Pirates/Maccy were held to just 2 runs to finish the first innings. In the second, Strath was able to score the 7 runs with patient batting and aggressive base running. Imogen was again in the thick of it teaming up with Byron Strange at first base to secure two outs in the next inning with a catch on the plate to end the innings with no runs scored. The final innings was uneven so the score reverted back to 14-4 at time and game.

Hahndorf vs Redsox Blue

A lead-off three-base hit by Rohan Martin (Hahndorf) set the tone for the game. Elisha Liebelt's first of four safe hits for the game brought in 2 runs. Disciplined batting and quick base running saw Hahndorf bring in the maximum 7 runs for the innings with the final run scored from a safe hit to centre field by Will Faber-Paul. Connor Abbott (Redsox) walked to get on base safely to lead-off and then scored. Pitcher for Hahndorf, Elisha Liebelt, worked well with catcher Will Faber-Paul to get three strikeouts and hold off Redsox scoring any more runs. Liebelt led-off the second innings with a home run. Cooper Crawford sent a hit out to right field and was followed round the bases by the next five batters. Liebelt finished the innings with a second home run before returning to the pitcher's plate for a further three strikeouts without Redsox scoring. Hahndorf had a third batting innings and again scored a maximum seven runs. Highlights included safe hits from Charlize Pocock and Mason Jones and a third home run from Elisha Liebelt. Time was called before Redsox could bat again which resulted in the score reverting to 14 – 1.

U16

Hahndorf (4) drew Redsox (4)

In the second game of the U16s double-header, Hahndorf came out firing, holding the Redsox scoreless in the top of the first with sharp fielding and two early strikeouts from lead-off pitcher Hayden Bunn — the first of his seven for the game. Bunn hit a home run, putting Hahndorf up 3–0 before Hancock closed the inning with back-to-back strikeouts. Redsox hit back in the second, scoring on a fielding error before Hahndorf shut them down with two strikeouts and a tag at second. Hancock replied with three straight strikeouts to keep Hahndorf scoreless. Hahndorf responded immediately — Blake Rosenzweig crushed a lead-off home run, followed by a Kaiden Martin double to left. In the fourth, Darian Andronikidis took over on the mound. Redsox put two runners on, and Neeve Soraghan cleared them with a three-base hit. Two slick defensive plays — including a Rosenzweig pickoff at first and a tag at home — stopped further damage. Hahndorf pushed hard for the win, with Rosenzweig again getting on base and stealing to third, but Hancock sealed the game with a final strikeout before the run could score — leaving the teams locked in a thrilling draw.

C Grade

Macclesfield vs Hahndorf

Macclesfield opened with Zarlee Winitana, quickly scoring the first run, but a stunning catch by Marie Hoffman led a triple play. Hahndorf wasted no time scoring their first 2 runs. Hahndorf's Dani Hooper scored after a strong hit right field then Maccy ended their charge with a third base catch to Naiah Hawkins. Hawkins then first up to bat drove a huge triple into deep right field to be scored by Winning and Winitana scored again on a hit by Lomman. Hahndorf returned the favour, three up, three down, and went back into bat. Celeste Paul added to the Hahndorf tally and Pocock got on base, Nash shook it off, made a put out at 1 and her second strike out sealed the innings. Hahndorf again narrowed the margin with Marie Hoffman hitting well as lead-off, Maccy held firm and maintained the lead, in their last bat scoring one more leaving Hahndorf 5 down but with ample time to get the win. A massive hit by Janaya Liebelt led to Kareena Winning taking an early contender for catch of the year. Hahndorf scored 3 in their last run, but Maccy won 11, Hahndorf 9.

Redsox vs Strathalbyn

A close game, with Redsox getting the points 21-17. The first innings saw Redsox bat first with 3 home with safe hits to Suvali Sharma and Tayla Hardy. Strathalbyn also got 3 home with safe hits to Brydie Spriggs and Elisa Duffield. The second innings saw big batting from both sides with Redsox and Strathalbyn both getting 10 runs in before side away. Tayla Hardy hit a 3 bagger for Redsox and Rebecca Sims hit a 2 bagger for Strathalbyn. The third and final innings was the deciding innings with the teams both having 13. Redsox batted well, and with some great safe hits they added another eight to their score, with Suvali Sharma hitting a three bagger. Strathalbyn added 4 to their score before 3 outs which included a big grand slam home run to Rebecca Sims.

Pirates vs Echunga

Pirates started the day batting with the first 3 batters getting on base with walks to Sue Stewart and Jessica Lovegrove and a safe hit to Kerry Lawson before Molly Playford found her rhythm to get Echunga's first out. Then Pirates newcomer Tasmine Wegener came into bat and got great safe hit to right field to score Pirates second run. Emma Fourie and Stacey Chilton both got hit by pitch to get on base then Danielle Hupfield came in hitting a rocket out to centre field scoring 2 more runs. Molly pitched well getting the last 2 outs with her second strikeout finishing the innings with the Pirates scoring 7 runs. Echunga were hitting well, scoring 4 runs before a pop fly to Sue finished the innings. Echunga played well getting the next 2 batters out then Danielle had another safe hit scoring Pirates only run of the innings. It was a great close game with both teams having fun, getting hits and making great plays. Final scores were Pirates 9 def Echunga 8.

NFA Pirates (9) def Hahndorf (1)

The Pirates got off to a steady start in the first couple of innings showing some nerves and rust being the first game of the season. Wendy Pope set the tone early — patient at the plate and working her way on base twice in the opening innings. By the third inning, the bats came alive. A couple of timely at-bats saw the Pirates plate four runs in the inning to take control of the game. The momentum carried straight into the fourth, as the Pirates kept the pressure on with another four-run burst. Kerry Lawson came through with a key hit, while Jodie Karayiannis and Jasmine Hartmann kept the rally alive with smart base running and hustle. Margie Cammell once again came to play with a huge home run, and backed it up in the field with a great catch running back into foul territory. Hahndorf managed to scratch one back in the fifth thanks to some sharp contact from Tracy Luxon and Emma Faber-Paul, but it wasn't enough to slow the Pirate ship. A final insurance run in the sixth capped off the Pirates' 9–1 victory — a full-team effort full of energy, communication, and clutch hitting from top to bottom.

Division 2

NFA Pirates (8) def Echunga Blue (2).
BEST: Henry Sexton (NFA Pirates), and Ben Marsh (Echunga Blue)

Both teams wanted to get an early win on the board. Pirates started the offensive innings with a hit to Dominic Sexton, Jake Short making it onto base by a hit pitch and Henry Sexton driving those 2 runs home with a hit out to centre field. Echunga managed to keep the Pirates run tally to 2 with some good pitching and infield plays. Pirates came back out strong, adding another 4 runs to their tally. Disciplined batting by Dave Klenke and T. Douglas got on base early and top order batters in Damin Sexton, Dominic Sexton, Jake Short and Mitch Butler drove the runs home. Echunga remained scoreless in their batting innings but were determined to break the Pirates momentum with 3 quick outs to end the third innings. Pirates extended their lead adding another 2 runs, taking advantage of some infield errors by Echunga but that was all the Pirates could muster with the following 3 batters all returning to the pine. Echunga finished strong, managing to get on the scoreboard in the final dig with a big 2 run Homerun by Ben Marsh to close out the game. Final score NFA Pirates 8, best players: Henry Sexton and Dominic Sexton, v Echunga Blue 2 best players: Ben Marsh, Ollie Askow.

Echunga Red (9) def Redsox (7)
BEST: Andy Haren (Echunga Red), and Jack Hancock (Redsox)

The Echunga Reds kicked off their season in style, claiming a thrilling 9–7 victory over the Redsox in a hard-fought first-round clash at Anembo Park. Andrew Hampel led from the front with solid contact at the plate, while Andy Haren and Caleb Richardson kept the scoreboard ticking with key base hits and smart runnings. Kingsley Elliott was composed on the mound, holding off several late Redsox challenges. Defensively, Kevin Moseby anchored the infield with sharp plays that shut down potential scoring opportunities, while the Reds' outfield worked tirelessly to back up their pitcher in the closing stages. For the Redsox, Tyson Saraghan and Jack Hancock stood out, combining for several strong hits that sparked a late-game rally and kept the pressure on Echunga's defence. Despite the fightback, the Reds' discipline and teamwork shone through, sealing a well-deserved opening-round win.

Macclesfield vs Hahndorf

The softball gods turned on a beautiful day for a grand final rematch between Macclesfield and Hahndorf. A depleted Macclesfield started strong with Sam Williams and Ryan Van Kaathoven hitting powerfully. Brian Franson scored 2 with a nice double but was left stranded as Hahndorf pitcher Dan Waters found his groove. Macclesfield pitcher Travis Ashman looked solid in his opening innings, shutting down 3 of the 4 first batters and retired the Hahndorf side. Macclesfield scored another 3 in the second innings, highlighted by a Sean Nash outfield hit. Dale Martin swapped from the red and black into a Hahndorf guernsey and led the come back with a double to centre field. Angus Wuttke and John Paturis continued the charge and when Ron Woolcook singled the margin was nowhere near as lopsided as it once was. A great catch by debutant, Kyle Ellison steadied the ship and Ashman eventually held on for a 7-7 all draw. A fitting result for 2 teams destined to be at the top once again this season. For Macclesfield Brian Franson was given best on ground honours and Sean Nash was also in the best. For Hahndorf John Paturis and Ron Woolcock deserve special mentions.

Division 1

Redsox (11) def Echunga (1)
BEST: G Klenke (Redsox), and A Philip (Echunga)

Echunga's return to div 1 had them hungry for a victory. They started off strong with pitcher N Dawe going through the top of the Redsox order 1,2,3. Redsox added 1 run in the second through two-way superstar Klenke smoking a base hit to centre, scoring A Wilson. Klenke picked up 3 more Ks in the second holding the Demons once again scoreless despite some free passes. The third was the breakout inning for the Redsox sluggers, scoring 4 runs on knocks to L Moyle and Klenke. Klenke dug deep and delivered a big 7th strikeout to Demons veteran hitter C Goodman. H May then took the ball in relief and K Goodman recorded an RBI base hit up the middle to put Echunga on the board. In the bottom half of the inning, Echunga picked up their only hit for the game through A Philp. The final innings saw Redsox young star T Soraghan smash a homerun to put an exclamation mark on the game. Echunga scraped together one run through C Goodman due to errors concluding the game at 11-2 in the favour of Redsox.

Macclesfield (5) def Hahndorf (3)
BEST: K McLeod (Macclesfield), and T Galgey (Hahndorf)

Macclesfield began their 2025 season on a winning note, holding off a late charge from Hahndorf to record a hard-fought 5–3 victory. Lachy Abbott reached based on a dropped third strike and managed to take advantage of a few errors from Hahndorf battery to find himself around the bases and levelling the game up 1-1.

McLeod again reached base with an infield single, and much like Abbott saw himself round the bases on errors and a single to Christian Rothall regaining the lead 2-1. Zakelj then led off the top of the fifth inning with a double to left field, then scoring on a triple to deep right field from Flinn. McLeod then drove in Flinn with a single to right field. Macclesfield taking the lead back 4-2. With tensions high coming into Hahndorf's final chance, Farrell led from the front with a single home run to centre-right, a double to Paturis and walks from McAllister and Blake Rosenzweig loaded the bases for Hahndorf. A smart play from Cooper Pedersen and composure from Zakelj saw Macclesfield hang on in a nail biting 5-3 victory to open the season.

Women's B Grade

Macclesfield Redbacks (3) def by Mount Barker Redsox (14)
BEST: Claudia Lions (Mount Barker), and Sienna Golder (Macclesfield)

A play at first saw the lead-off batter out but the experienced Redsox batters soon settled scoring the maximum 10 runs after 2 base hits to Talia Moyle and Lexi Griggs at her first at bat in the Redsox colours and singles to Dani Brown, Tayla Hardy and Kezza Hardy. Macclesfield responded with 2 runs, Amabel Lions was safe at first on an error, she was advanced on a hit by Claudia Lions before both were scored on a massive hit to left field by Karlyn McLeod. 2K2's and a catch by pitcher Kylie Gray retired the side. Macclesfield tightened in the field in the second innings holding Redsox to 1 run with catches to C. Lions, Zarlee Whintana and Watkins. Redsox scored 3 runs with safe hits to Moyle, Gray and Steph Cross. A pitching change saw Sienna Golder replace Gray, a great start saw the lead-off batter struck out, before A. Lions picked a walk then managed to steal her way around the bases to score home before a strike out and play at first ended the innings.

Women's A Grade

Hahndorf Magpies (15) def by NFA Pirates (0)
BEST: Mia Oats-Willis (Magpies), and Georgia Mason (Pirates)

The Hahndorf Magpies showed exactly why they are the defending premiers, storming to a 15–0 victory. The game lasted just three innings before the run-ahead rule was invoked, with Hahndorf's mix of powerful hitting and dominant pitching proving too much to handle. Mia Oats-Willis and Megan Jemson set the tone with early hits and aggressive baserunning, while Sophie Walton added a clutch single that drove in two runs. In the circle, Jankovic was outstanding across the first two innings, striking out six of the seven batters she faced without conceding a hit or a walk. Lucy Weatherstone took over to close out the third and was equally ruthless, striking out the side to complete the combined no-hit shutout. In total, the Magpies' pitchers struck out nine from nine in a flawless performance. The Pirates fought hard at the plate but were left chasing shadows against Hahndorf's relentless pitching and airtight defence. By the bottom of the third, the Magpies had surged to a 15–0 lead, sealing the result under the run-ahead rule.

Hills Softball Association - Round 2

U14

Strathalbyn vs Redsox Blue

This week the teams were very evenly matched which made for an exciting game for spectators.

Redsox started strong with good hits to Connor Abbot and Brodie Mattingly.

Strathalbyn was able to hold them to just 2 runs in the 1st off the solid battery work of Imogen Baker to Anna Scott.

Patient batting and aggressive base running saw Strath achieve the 7 run innings limit.

The second innings was a repeat of the 1st bringing the score to 4-14.

In the final innings a change of pitchers for both teams changed the momentum and Redsox brought in 7 runs with a notable 3 Base hit for Will Gregory Thomas.

With only 5 minutes left Strath went back to bat and Izabella Vanderzon hit a 2 baser and scored off Byron Strange's Home Run.

A great end to a game. Redsox 11 – Strathalbyn 17 but unfortunately due to losing a player and dropping to 6 in the last 10 minutes Strathalbyn will forfeit the points.

U16

Hahndorf (12) def Redsox (0).

BEST: Blake Rosenzweig (Hahndorf), and Sam Hancock (Redsox)

Overall a strong game in the field and with the bat.

Hahndorf starting pitcher, Lucy Weatherstone only allowed one runner on base with Sam Hancock sliding a hit through the infield to reach first before striking out three batters to close the inning.

Hahndorf worked through their complete line up at the bottom of the first.

Every player either made contact or reached base to score the maximum 7 runs in an inning.

Highlights included a home run by Blake Rosenzweig, a 2 base hit by Hayden Bunn and a text book bunt by Jensen Marshall.

Hayden Bunn then came in to relief pitcher in the second innings. he closed out the game ithrough to the end of the fourth, allowing 2 runners on base but no runs to cross the plate.

Sam Hancock threatened to send a ball deep into centre field but it was run down by Blake Rosenzweig for a run saving catch.

In their final two batting innings Hahndorf stayed busy with the bats and on the base paths.

Blake Rosenzweig and Elisha Liebelt had further two base hits which helped to bring in the final 3 runs and sealing the 12-0 win.

C Grade

Hahndorf (17) def Pirates (4)

BEST: Emma Faber-Paul (Hahndorf), and Brenae Wieringa (Pirates)

Hahndorf had a wonderful start to the game bringing in 5 runs with hits to Marie Hoffman, Danielle Guilfoyle, Georgia Fairley, Janaya and Eliana Liebelt.

Short stop Elsie Bloffwhitch fielded and played out two outs together with Sue Stewart.

Pirates had a very short innings, 3 batters, 3 outs.

Hahndorf came back to the plate adding 10 runs with great batting. Every single person got bat to ball throughout the game.

Pirates came back into bat, not managing to get anyone across the plate.

New pitcher Vanessa Silvy came to the strip and ebbed the run flow for Hahndorf, with only Emma Faber-Paul crossing the plate.

Pirates came out determined, batting 4 runners around the diamond with good hits from S Stewart, Bernard Wieringa, E Bloffwhitch, V Silvy and Emma Fourie.

Last innings saw Hahndorf add one run and Pirates shut down quickly.

A beautiful, friendly and fun game.

Echunga (11) def Redsox (8)

Echunga batted first and safe hits to Lindsay Butler, Molly Playford and Indi Sinnott put runners in scoring position.

Chris Wawryk was thrown out at first for Echunga's first out.

Fielding errors and pass balls moved Shelly Lock, Ella Playford and Hayley Brown around the diamond to score 3 runs before two outs in a row closed the first dig.

Redsox opening batter Suvali Sharma hit to right field but was thrown out second attempting to get the two bagger.

Talya Hardy, Glenys Sward and Glenys Megson found the gaps in the outfield to load the bases.

Echunga pitcher Ella Playford walked two hitters for easy runs to Redsox before regaining composure and striking out Mel Gowland.

Thiele-Wittling was thrown out on the force to home plate.

At the change Echunga was up 6-3.

Redsox pitcher Tayla Hardy worked hard in the top of the second with two strikeouts to hold Echunga scoreless in the second dig.

E. Playford replied with an infield fly catch and a dropped third strike on Redsox first two batters.

The next two batters got to base on balls and fielding errors got Sward, Megson and Thiele-Wittling home to even the score at 6-6.

Echunga came out swinging and E. Playford, H. Brown, S. Pedergnana, L. Butler and M. Playford scoring to put Echunga ahead by 11 to 6.

Echunga shortstop Indi Sinnott defended the lead with force outs on second and home plate to prevent the first two runners scoring.

Redsox batted aggressively and loaded the bases to get Megson and Thiele-Wittling home before H. Brown put out K Hardy on third.

At the bottom of the third Echunga held their lead 11-8.

With 10 minutes to play Echunga took their time in the batters box.

The innings was not completed so at 'Time and Game' the score reverted to 11-8 for Echunga to claim their first win of the season.

Strathalbyn (20) vs Macclesfield (2)

Strathalbyn took on Macclesfield in Round 2 of the C Grade this week. Strath started their first at bat strong with 8 runs scoring.

Maccy were hot on the bats in their first at bat but thanks to Strathalbyn's strong defensive work only 1 run was scored.

In the second Strath was again hot on the bats, a lead off home run to Rebecca Sims was the start of what would be a 10 run inning.

Maccy was again getting bat to ball but was held scoreless thanks to Strath's defensive pressure.

Pitching changes in the 3rd saw Jerilee Nash step to the plate for Maccy and they were able to hold Strath to just 2 runs.

Annabel McGregor stepped to the plate for Strath in their own pitching change.

A strong lead off hit from Lisa Lions scored thier only run for the innings.

A successful 4-6-3 double play and a routine play to the safe glove of Elise Duffield ended the innings and the game.

Division 2

Mount Barker Redsox (7) def Hahndorf (4). BEST: Tyson Soraghan (Redsox), and Blake Rosenzweig (Hahndorf)

In a game featuring 5 home runs, those wearing red socks came out victorious thanks to hitting 4 of them.

Batting first, Hahndorf loaded the bases with no outs to start the game. Jack Hancock then limited the damage to one run with some efficient pitching, which continued throughout the game.

Redsox answered back immediately with a run in the bottom of the first thanks to a leadoff homerun to Sam Hancock.

The top of the second saw Hahndorf add two runs thanks to a home run from Blake Rosenzweig followed by back to back doubles from Mark Peressin and Dan Waters.

Redsox reduced the deficit thanks to a solo homerun in the bottom of the inning.

Hahndorf were held scoreless in the top of the third with some good pitching by Jack Hancock, supported by a superb outfield catch from Connor Wray-Martin.

The bottom of the third inning resulted in Redsox scoring four runs, with Tyson Soraghan hitting his first of two homeruns for the game and hits from Barney Bevan and Connor Wray-Martin adding to the score.

Jack Hancock pitched well in the fourth, limiting Hahndorf to a sole run ably assisted thanks to some great glovework by Sam Hancock and Connor Wray-Martin.

The bottom of the fourth saw redsox add an insurance run on Tyson Soraghan's second homerun of the game.

The top of the fifth started well for Hahndorf with a leadoff double, but attempting to stretch a steal of third into a run, good work by Sam Hancock and Tyson Soraghan saw the runner tagged out.

Jack Hancock then struck out two batters to seal the victory.

Echunga Blue (5) def by Pirates Black (8). BEST: Cameron Rull (Echunga), and Darryl Elliott (Pirates)

The Pirates Black secured an emphatic home victory over Echunga Blue in a lively and high-scoring encounter, finishing 8–5 after five innings.

The Pirates showcased offensive power and plate discipline, while Echunga Blue battled hard but couldn't keep pace with the relentless scoring.

Pirates Black wasted no time asserting themselves, scoring four runs in the bottom of the first inning through a string of well-placed hits and aggressive base running.

Darryl Elliott and Ben White set the tone at the top of the order, each reaching base and scoring to give the Pirates early momentum.

Echunga Blue managed to scratch out a single run in the top of the first, with Braden Dunn crossing the plate, but the home side extended their lead quickly, tacking on another four runs in the second to make it 8–1 by the end of two innings.

Echunga pitched and fielded well in the third, not letting the Pirates score any runs.

Echunga added four runs to narrow the deficit, with key contributions from Cameron Rull and Michael Jaegers drawing walks and moving around the bases smartly.

Gav Richardson and Charlie Askew also reached safely, helping the team post their best offensive inning of the match.

The Pirates dominated with the bat in the fourth innings with Darryl getting a big home run, only for the game to be called and scores to revert back, denying him the stat.

Division 1

Redsox (4) def Macclesfield (3) BEST: Jo Harvey (Redsox), and K Zekeji (Macclesfield)

Macclesfield faced off with Redsox in a tight div 1 men's clash. Maccy run out to an early 2 run lead with K Zakelj and L Abbott reaching base, stealing and scoring.

Redsox threatened in the bottom half but were unsuccessful bringing anyone home with a critical caught stealing to end the Redsox inning.

Maccy continued to cause problems for the Redsox defence through stolen bases in the second with J Pendleton reaching via walk and stealing his way around the bases due to errors and pure pace.

With Maccy holding a 3-run lead, the scoring remained still for both sides due to excellent pitching from the Redbacks S Flynn and Redsox H May settled into his rhythm.

Redsox pushed their luck a little too far with C Bottroff attempting a solo inside the park homerun but was called out via a perfect throw home by Abbott.

Redsox finally put 2 on the board with leadoff triple to R Karayiannis who was knocked in by A Wilson who also scored off a J Hancock single cutting the deficit to 1 run.

The scoring once again remained still until the final innings and Redsox last chance to mount a come from behind victory.

L Moyle leadoff with a walk and Hancock poked a single to left to put the tying and winning runs on base with none out.

G Klenke delivered a clutch double to tie the game and place the winning run on third.

J Harvey stepped up to the plate in the moment you can only dream of and he delivered!

RBI single through the infield to walk off the game and Redsox secure a come from behind 4 – 3 victory.

Women's B Grade

Mount Barker Redsox (5) def Hahndorf (2). BEST: Sienna Golder (Mount Barker), and Kristen Hailstone (Hahndorf)

Mount Barker Redsox fielded first in the game against Hahndorf Magpies, young gun Sienna Golder started on the strip.

Tight fielding by Redsox kept Hahndorf scoreless, Lead off Batter Nancy Johns was out at first after a great play by right fielder Dani Brown and plays at first by Golder and short stop Talia Moyle retired the side.

Vicki Perkins took on pitching duties for the Magpies, lead off Batter Kezza Hardy was safe on first after a solid line drive up the middle, a K2 and a catch to left field Georgia Fairley saw the next two batters out, after a good battle in the box Moyle picked a walk.

A double to Kylie Gray scored Hardy and Moyle with a put out at first ending the innings redsox with the lead 2-0.

Magpies were three up three down in the second with Golder in fire with a KC and a put out at first.

Chris Warwyck made a great connection with the bat but line drove it straight to short stop Moyle taking the catch.

Redsox were held scoreless with Kirsty Hailstone replacing the injured Perkins, two outs at first and a catch to shortstop Emma Jarvis.

Hits to Nancy Johns and Tracy Luxon had Magpies on the score board in the third scoring two runs before being shut down by the Redsox defence with two outs at first and a catch to Moyle.

In reply Tight defence by Magpies held Redsox to only three runs even though all batters got on base, with two put outs at home on the forced play and one at third base.

The 4th innings started with all Magpies batters safe on base and brining in the maximum 10 runs but with time running out and Redsox not finishing its turn at bat the runs reverted with Redsox taking the win 5-2.

Women's A Grade

Hahndorf (12) def Anembo Park (1) BEST: Breanna Luxon (Hahndorf), and Lauren Christensen (Redsox)

Hahndorf produced another commanding display on Friday night, defeating Redsox 12–1 under lights at Anembo Park.

The Magpies jumped out to an early lead and maintained control throughout, combining consistent hitting with disciplined defense.

Breanna Luxon set the tone at the top of the order, consistently finding ways on base and scoring runs, while Georgia King and Mia Oats-Willis provided further spark with key contributions.

Sophie Walton also added to the scoreboard pressure, ensuring Hahndorf kept momentum throughout the match.

Redsox managed to avoid the shutout when Lauren Christensen crossed the plate in the fourth innings for their only run of the night.

Chloe Zakelj worked hard in the field and produced determined at-bats, but Redsox were ultimately unable to match Hahndorf's firepower.

Strathalbyn (11) def Pirates (2)

Strathalbyn continued their strong start to the Hills Softball Association A Grade women's season with an impressive 11–2 victory over the Pirates on Saturday.

Star pitcher Tess Smith led the way in the pitching circle, delivering a commanding performance that saw her allow just one hit across the entire game.

Smith's control and consistency kept the Pirates' batters on the back foot from the first inning.

At the plate, Payton Daniels and Georgia Tomlinson both produced big hits to drive in crucial runs, while Kim Cutting was outstanding with the bat, finishing the game with three solid hits.

The match also marked a special moment for Lara Tamke, who made her A Grade debut at first base and impressed with her composure and effort in the field.

Strathalbyn's all-round team performance highlighted their growing depth and confidence as the season progresses, while the Pirates will look to regroup and bounce back in next week's fixture.

Big wins in tennis

The margins were large in Great Southern Tennis Division 1 matches last weekend, with the two Inman teams and Victor producing dominant performances. Inman Blue gave Mt Compass a reality check, winning five rubbers to one with both sides missing players. It was a matter of which team settled best, with the home side setting the tone in an even performance. Will Baird's debut in doubles and Margy Dyer's singles win, showcasing her court craft, were highlights. Compass's Stirling Down saved the visitors' blushes with a strong singles win, but it proved too little. Inman Red denied Myponga-Sellicks a first-up victory, also winning five rubbers to one to continue their good form. Myponga-Sellicks were a little rusty after their round one bye, with top pairing Jack Pacitti and Jason Heinze falling just short in the deciding super tiebreak set. Inman Red dominated the singles, winning seven of the eight matches. Bree Liebhardt claimed a tough encounter, while Pacitti secured the home side's only win with a strong performance. Victor Harbor notched their first win of the season, clean sweeping Pt Elliot in a dominant showing at the Encounter Bay courts. Missing Scott McPhee, the very young Pt Elliot side showed plenty of pluck, with the best performer being Zara Bowles, who narrowly lost an epic match to Danika Millard. For Victor, it was an even display from all players, with Jack Prosser's singles a highlight.

Round three action hits off with Back Valley, fresh from the bye, taking on Victor Harbor at Back Valley. Victor will take confidence from Saturday's win, but Back Valley, having played only once, remain a relative unknown. Who will play number one out of Keni Lewis-Baida or Ty Budiono if both are available? Will Zach Tozer's winning junior form over Danika Millard carry into senior tennis? It should be a close match, but Back Valley have enough weapons to make an impact on the scoreboard and get the win. Inman Blue head to Myponga to take on the locals and look every bit a top-two contender. Still missing several players, the Blue side can improve further, while Myponga-Sellicks will be better for their first hit-out last week.

John Olson's tennis smarts are proving invaluable against younger opponents and may be telling again on Saturday. For Myponga-Sellicks, there could be line-up changes to surprise the visitors. Despite the home-court advantage, Inman Blue should continue their unbeaten run with a comfortable win. Mt Compass return to Inman to play Inman Red with a better understanding of where they sit in the competition and what's required. The omission of Andrew Down is a big loss for Compass, but they've shown great fight so far that will frustrate Inman Red. The Red team have performed well, playing consistently and getting the job done when required, and this Saturday should be no different, keeping their winning record intact.

Murray Bridge Rifle Club Report

Tricky conditions at Deed Range

Another day of difficult weather conditions awaited shooters this past weekend at the Deed Range in Monarto, as the Murray Bridge Rifle Club shot the 14th round of its Championship from 800 metres. The top two shooters in TR were only separated by centres, with Robert Paech pipping Greg Traeger

91.07 to 91.05. However, it was Jasamine Irvine who snuck through to claim the handicap award, with her 88.05 giving her a final score of 103.4. In F-Class, Mark Nesti led the way with a 56.04 in his first round to finish top off-rifle in F-Open with 109.05, and to claim the handicap award, two points ahead of Gordon Harrison. "Harro" didn't finish empty-handed, also shooting a 56 in his first round to be top off-rifle in F-Standard. Not going home empty-handed - although they might have wished they did - were Maggie Award winners Mark Whittle (3) and Frank Marshall (2).

Opening day celebrations followed by great racing

Although round one of racing was held last week, Sunday marked the official opening of the 2025 sailing season for both the Goolwa Sailing Club and the Goolwa Aquatic Club.

Twenty-three sailors across 14 dinghies took part in the traditional sail past before the day's racing, and it was on for young and old.

Conditions were lively early, with a brisk and gusty southerly breeze keeping sailors on their toes in the first race.

The wind then eased off considerably, leaving races two and three to be sailed in much lighter conditions that tested patience at times.

Despite the shifty breeze, the warm weather drew a strong turnout.

There was plenty of enthusiasm on the water, with the PS Oscar W and the vintage boat race adding to the spectacle and creating a busy but enjoyable atmosphere for competitors.

Round three of the Goolwa series is scheduled for next Sunday, with a briefing at 12.30pm and racing to begin at 1pm.

Medal of Medallists is Jo Cullen

On October 15, 16 ladies played a stroke competition including putting.

It was the final for the Medal of Medallists between the monthly medallists from the year – Penny Geue, Kerrie Edwards, Tonya Merritt and Jo Cullen.

Jo Cullen kept her winning ways happening by winning this competition from the other contenders.

Congratulations to you, Jo.

The results for the stroke competition are: Helen Lyon taking the win with 68 nett from Cara Eastwood on 69.

Next came Jo Cullen 70, Mandi

Vardon 72, three ladies on 73 – Jenny Drury, Mel Johnson and Tonya Merritt.

Gill Keane and Kerrie Edwards finished with 74, while Jo Pickhaver scored 75.

Marie Kingsbury had 76, Pauline Walkom 77, Ann Semple 78, Penny Geue 79 and Di Krutli finished with 83.

Sue Pryor played 9 holes for 45.

In the putting competition, Mandi won the day with 28 putts followed by Jenny and Tonya with 30.

Jo Cullen 31, Cara, Mel, Kerrie, Jo Pickhaver and Marie all had 33, Gill 35, Helen, Penny and Di 36, and Pauline had 37.

Di scored with a fantastic drive on the 9th hole to win the NTP, while birdies were scored by Cara and Tonya on the 8th hole.

Mel scored one on the 11th, but she also had a gobbler on the 8th hole.

The dam caught out both Penny and Jo Pickhaver, but Jo P. had a good jump off the drain on the 14th.

The course had more run on it after a couple of warm to hot days.

It is time to stay on the left heading west and on the right heading east.

Congratulations to the ladies team (Mandi, Nikki, Di and Jo Pickhaver) from the Spring Feast Day from Sunday week ago.

Finishing third was a real treat. They combined well.

On October 17, three ladies – Jenny, Jo Cullen and Mel – represented the club at the Willunga Ladies Open Day.

It had a theme of the letter 'P'. There was good and bad golf involved, however putting blew out the scores.

The weather proved to be a bonus.

Jo Cullen Medal of Medallist winner.

Winner of Stroke round Helen Lyon with runner up Cara Eastwood.

Jenny Drury, Jo Cullen and Mel Johnson at Willunga.

Nettle’s back nine a winner

By Perry Jones

It was a day out for Damien Nettle on the Strathalbyn golf course last Saturday when, thanks to his back nine, he was able to take out the par competition on a countback from Kevin Shepley.

This Saturday the green cart also performed well, getting Damien and Wayne Miles around without incident, Wayne probably wishing it had broken down again, with his card at the end of the day showing -5.

Damien looked to be heading the same way as Wayne, sitting at -2 on the front nine, but things certainly picked up for him on the back nine.

He started by winning the tenth, then squared the next two holes before stringing together four more winning holes.

He finished by squaring the last two holes for +5 on the back to finish +3 for the day.

Kevin Shepley also finished +3 for the round, thanks to four positives on the last four holes of the front nine, before slipping a bit on the back nine - particularly on the tenth when he three-putted after being on the green in two to only square the hole.

Kevin did pick up wins on the eleventh and thirteenth, and was happy that, for the first time since winter, he stopped his handicap from blowing out.

Going around with Kevin was Ian Furniss, who had to settle for -4, at one stage stringing together four minuses in a row on the front nine.

Ian’s mate visiting from the Highercombe Golf Club, Ellis Burchell, mentioned that Strathalbyn had a great course despite coming in last for the day with -8.

If Des Kelly had done a bit better than -4 on the front nine, he could have been in the mix as winner of the day, as he had +5 on the back nine, including being nearest the pin off the tee on the seventeenth, before missing his birdie chance.

Another to finish +1 for the round was Michael Clarke, who left his partners Brian Simpson and Dave Prior behind.

Brian, on -1, somehow managed to get the longest drive (19+) on the fifth, while Dave, still settling back in after a trip to Spain, was not willing to put his card in.

He also had to stop Brian and Michael from souveniring his cork hat he brought back from overseas.

Gordon Robson and Ken Lester, playing with “Lord” Haberfield, also came in at +1. Gordon started well with positives on the opening two holes before carding his first minus on the fourth when his putt sat on the lip.

He redeemed himself on the fifth when he sank a long putt for what he said was an easy par, before producing his best shot of the day on the par-three sixth across the creek.

His tee shot landed well short before taking a big bounce, jumping the creek and travelling up near the green.

He escaped with a square.

Gordon followed this up with a par on the seventh and was looking in great shape at +4 after the fifteenth before a string of minus results left him +1 for the day.

Ken mentioned that +1 for the round might be the first time he had finished in positive territory.

While Gordon said Ken’s biggest problem was getting the ball on the tee, on the fourth Ken had to hit his way out of the drain to square the hole, but on the ninth got to +1 when he was on the green in two and then sank a long side-hill putt for a positive.

Alan Haberfield was a bit worried that his ordinary round of -5 would see him finish last, his problems starting on the third when his tee shot finished on the second fairway.

Then, trying to get back onto the third fairway, he hit a tree and the ball went at right angles across the third fairway and finished behind another tree.

He finished by picking the ball up. Ken also had tree trouble before managing to loft the ball over them from 100 metres out, over the drain and onto the green to salvage a square.

On the par-three eighth Alan must have been confident he could land his tee shot on the green, as he lined up with his putter before realising he had the wrong club.

He should have stuck with the putter, as his tee shot went well right and he was still in the rough with his second shot.

His third went over the green and finished on the path to the ninth tee block, and he picked up after his long putt fell well short.

Bradley Clements had his normal wayward shots, like on the eleventh off the tee when he tried to get back onto the tenth fairway.

The ball took a big bend in the air to the right, and then, having visited the dentist during the week, he couldn’t get his teeth into his putting, three-putting before picking up.

Bradley would have gained a bit of experience going around with Sean Walsh, Kirk Richardson and Henry Kelly.

Kirk and Henry finished square for the round.

Kirk had a bit of luck on the tenth when he tried to cut out the dog-leg by going over the trees off the tee.

He thought his ball had gone too straight and was out of bounds, so hit a provisional.

This time it looked as though he might have cleared the trees, but the group couldn’t find it.

Luckily they found his first drive hadn’t quite gone out of bounds and, from the rough, he got through the trees with his second shot and squared the hole with a par.

Sean, finishing at -2, had a problem on the second hole when he couldn’t find his ball off the tee and headed towards the first tee block.

In the meantime, course curator Red Sorrell, cleaning up balls around the practice tee block before he teed off, noticed a ball near the first tee and picked it up, taking it back to the practice fairway.

Along came Sean, enquiring if someone had picked his up, Red confessing.

Red, playing with Troy Williams and Russell Kimm, did well on the twelfth to finish square when his second shot finished just short of drain trouble.

He put his next shot well over the back of the green to finish with a bogey but was still able to square on handicap.

On this hole Troy, off the tee, had a long hit but the ball rolled off the fairway to be against the base of a tree.

Then, in getting it clear with his next shot, the ball went across the fairway to finish under pine trees on the other side, and in the end he needed to sink a long off-green putt to salvage a square, but left it well short and picked up.

Russell got a par on this hole for a plus, and played a good second shot out of the drain on the thirteenth to be just off the green to square this hole.

But he was always behind the eight-ball on the day with four minuses after the first five holes, doing well to still finish square.

Ben McLeod messed up the first four holes to be -4 after the front nine and then on the tenth, off the tee, went right and was playing his third shot out on the eleventh fairway.

He lobbed the ball onto the green to still make par and a plus, followed by two more positives with a birdie on the twelfth, before four minuses in a row left him -5 for the day.

Graeme Noble had a mixed day, missing three birdie chances, but took out the longest drive (0-18) on the fourteenth, with his tee shot only 100 metres out from the green.

He was -1 after nine holes and finished square.

Mick Beasley lost the plot after being square on the front nine to finish -4.

Partner Paul Coombe finished -1 for the round and had a bit of trouble on the par-five seventh to square.

Off the tee, Paul’s ball went right, then needing to hit through trees, he got the ball further up the fairway.

His next went into the dam, so he needed to take a drop, then hit to the back right of the green before sinking a long putt for the desired result.

Mike Semple had -3 after being square at halfway.

Like partner Erick Heyns, he finished on -3 and had seven scrubs for the round. Mike certainly had a problem on the seventh when he lost two balls, making it three lost balls for the day, but he was happy to have scored a birdie on the twelfth..
